Korea--Bound C-124 Falter After Takeoff

Transport Disaster Near Tokyo History's Worst Air Tragedy

TOKYO (AP)—A giant C-124 Globemaster pinwheelled out of the murky sky near Tokyo today and crashed in flames carrying 129 Americans to their deaths in history's worst air disaster.

The Air Force said 60 bodies had been identified. The huge double-deck transport was carrying 122 Army engineers and air-men back to battle stations in Korea. The plane had a crew of seven.

There were no survivors.

The Globemaster crashed seconds after taking off from the U. S. air base at Tachikawa, 25 miles west of Tokyo.

An eyewitness said the giant plane "somersaulted like a bird and plummeted to the ground."

A Japanese farmer, Masayasu Kinoshita, said "the huge plane came skimming over the trees by the highway. Two of its four propellers were not turning. Then it circled and crashed and exploded."

THE PLANE was a special flight for soldiers, not one of the regular courier runs between Japan and Korea.

The worst previous air disaster was the crash of another Globemaster near Larson Air Force Base at Moses Lake, Wash., which killed 86 last Dec. 20.

Associated Press Photographer Max Desfor reported from the scene:

"The plane crashed in a muddy rice field just in front of a bamboo grove."

"An Air Force major from Tachikawa said his men had removed nearly 130 bodies."

NAMES OF the dead will not be released until next of kin are notified.

The Air Force said there was some light rain and fog as the plane left Tachikawa, but the weather was not bad enough to ground aircraft.

It said there was a ceiling of about 1,000 feet and visibility of about one mile. A spokesman said the safety limits are a 250-foot ceiling and half-mile visibility.

Dulles Blasts Rhee's Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the South Korean government's release of many thousands of anti-Communist prisoners of war "was in violation of the authority of the United Nations Command."

Dulles made the statement to newsmen after discussing the Korean situation with President Eisenhower and other members of the National Security Council. He said: "President Eisenhower is communicating with President Rhee of South Korea in this sense."

Earlier the President had discussed the Korean prisoner situation with Congress members.

Prowlers Shoot, Beat Watch Dog

A Mt. Sterling Route 3 farmer has lost a watch dog to prowlers who staged a raid on his henhouse.

Cecil Deardruff of near Five Points told Deputy Carl White someone shot his dog four times early Wednesday about one-half mile away from the farmhouse. The dog was shot either with a rifle or pistol.

The dog still lived, however, and was cared for at the farmhouse.

Wednesday night, prowlers invaded the Deardruff henhouse. They finished the job on the dog by beating his head with a blunt instrument.

Deardruff told the deputy the dog was still alive when he found him Thursday morning, but that he soon died.

ATTORNEYS FOR ATOMIC spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and two rival lawyers congratulate each other on winning a stay of execution by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for the condemned couple. The Rosenbergs' defense attorneys are Emanuel Bloch (second from right) and John Finerty (extreme right). Ironically, the issue on which the Rosenbergs won their reprieve was raised by attorneys Daniel Marshall (left) and Fyke Farmer (second from left). They represented Irwin Edelman, Los Angeles writer, who claimed the Rosenbergs were improperly tried under a 1917 spy act. Meanwhile, Rep. William Wheeler (D), Georgia, introduces a bill in the House to impeach Justice Douglas for staying the execution. Wheeler said Douglas yielded to "vociferous pressure groups" when he took "unto himself the authority to grant amnesty to two proven spies."

Reports Of New Fire Aid Deals Hint Study Behind-The-Scenes

Reports of behind-the-scenes activity on questions of out-of-town fire protection were virtually confirmed here Thursday.

Mayor Ed Amey said he had relayed—prior to Council's meeting last Tuesday night—a request for fire protection for a large property owner near Circleville.

The question was directed to the Mayor after the first contact had been made with Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

Amey said he relayed the information that the property owner offered up to $100 a call for any runs made by the city fire department.

THE PROPOSAL, it was learned, was discussed in a side conference during the Council session, but was not brought out for formal consideration. Reasons for delaying action on the request were not known.

In the same unexplained manner, Council has delayed putting "on paper" an agreement with the county to cover fire protection for Pickaway County Children's Home and the county infirmary. County officials asked for the formal agreement some time ago.

Questioned on the status of both matters, Wise said he was aware of the property owner request and the county's request for a formal pact to cover the home and infirmary.

The Chief indicated he was puzzled by delay in acting on the proposals, but emphasized both

Ex-Agent Says McCarthy Was To Be Slain

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former FBI undercover agent testified today he heard a Communist boast last December that he had been picked by Communist leaders to kill Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The testimony came from Joseph D. Mazzei of Pittsburgh, who said the man who made the boast was Lou Bortz of Pittsburgh.

Mazzei said he was an FBI counter spy, posing as a Communist, when he attended a secret meeting in Pittsburgh at which Bortz announced "he was selected by the Communist party to do a job in the liquidation of Sen. Joseph McCarthy."

Road Easement Set At $3,422

A jury in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court has set $3,422 as total damages for a highway easement of Route 104 between Fox Postoffice and Big Darby Creek.

In an action filed by Louise Meredith and Lawrence Liston, trustees, against S. O. Linzell as head of the state highway department, the jury set the claim at $668 for the land taken and $2,754 for damages to the residue.

Top Justices Return For Special Session

Douglas' Reversal Could Send Pair To Deaths Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court met today in an extraordinary session which will decide whether atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg must go to the electric chair tonight.

All nine justices were present.

Chief Justice Vinson called the court together to consider a petition by Attorney General Brownell that they override the action Wednesday of Justice William O. Douglas in granting a stay of execution to the husband-wife spy team.

In all its history, the court never before had been convened in special session for such a purpose.

If a majority agrees to overrule Douglas, the condemned atom spies could be put to death at Sing Sing Prison at 10 p. m. EST tonight as had been scheduled before Douglas issued his stay order or at any time before Saturday midnight.

THE JUSTICES met in closed conference for 15 minutes before the start of the public session.

Before the public session began, it was announced each side would have an hour and a half to present arguments.

Robert L. Stern, acting solicitor general, appeared for the government.

Stern began his argument two minutes after the court convened.

He said at the outset since Douglas granted his stay on grounds which had not been considered by the court previously, he would discuss only the one point issue.

Fire Damages Alaska's Main Military Port

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Fire and explosions destroyed millions of dollars worth of military installations and supplies last night at Alaska's main military port of Whittier, 72 miles southeast of here.

The rampaging, wind-blown flames in less than four hours destroyed three new warehouses, two docks and other buildings. Reports here and at Seward but not confirmed by the military said that a quantity of ammunition blew up.

Cause of the fire was undetermined and two unofficial versions were given. One said that a forest fire in adjacent timber swept into the town. The second said a boiler in one of the warehouses blew up to set off the blaze.

Three persons were reported critically injured in the boiler explosion. An Alaska Railroad yardmaster was believed to be the only other casualty.

Alaska Defense Command officials here said the port facilities were wiped out and no longer were usable.

The fire started at 5:45 p. m. and ate its way to the dock area within a few minutes.

Military officials declined to estimate the loss but admitted that it would run into the millions of dollars.

WOOSTER (AP)—The Rev. David N. Roller, new moderator of Ohio's Presbyterian synod, has named the Rev. James F. Bolen of Newark vice moderator.

The new moderator, elected Tuesday, is pastor of Mansfield First Presbyterian Church and the new vice moderator is from the Second Presbyterian in Newark.

Rhee Orders POWs Freed

TOKYO (AP)—South Korea revolted against the UN Command and its armistice terms today, freeing some 25,000 anti-Red Korean prisoners and announcing immediate steps to enlist most of them in its own army.

President Syngman Rhee's arbitrary order turned South Korea's anti-truce threats into direct action, catching his allies flat-footed and leaving them sharply resentful.

What effect it would have on the truce—now apparently only an arm's reach away—was not known. No official source would speculate.

In Seoul, a reliable source indicated Rhee has sent a flat "no" to President Eisenhower's June 6 appeal for South Korea to accept the armistice. The source quoted Rhee as telling Eisenhower South Korea would perish under the truce terms.

South Korean guards in four camps turned their backs as the prisoners fled into the morning darkness.

With most of the 16,000 South Korean guards standing by idly, small numbers of surprised Americans tried to stop the flight with rifle fire, but they were too few.

Nine prisoners were killed and 16 wounded.

UN troops recaptured 971 prisoners, even as Lt. Gen. Won Yong Duk, South Korean provost marshal.

POWs' Release May Hurt Truce

MUNSAN (AP)—The draft of a Korean truce apparently was completed today but its fate might turn on President Syngman Rhee's open defiance of his allies in arbitrarily releasing 25,000 anti-Red prisoners of war.

Rhee's order opening the gates of four POW camps in this morning's darkness was in direct opposition to the armistice terms.

Even as the prisoners scattered, it appeared that all details of an armistice agreement had been wrapped up and the final text was being rushed to completion.

Preparations for exchanging thousands of war prisoners were rushed by both sides. UN officials speculated on whether Rhee's action would hurt the truce.

A-Spy's Mother Capital Bound

NEW YORK (AP)—The mother of condemned atom spy Julius Rosenberg flew to Washington today, hoping to make a personal appeal to President Eisenhower for mercy for her son and his wife, Ethel.

"I am going to plead for the life of my two children," Mrs. Sophie Rosenberg said.

The UN prisoner command disclosed one ROK guard was killed.

There were reports the prisoners were being taken into private homes or hiding in the hills.

Rhee had urged all civilians to help the prisoners.

Battle Flares In Prison Camp Near Inchon

100 Reported Killed As Marines Fight Anti-Red Captives

SEOUL, Friday (AP)—North Korean anti-Red prisoners clashed today in a bloody battle with U. S. Marines and soldiers at an Allied prison camp near Inchon.

First fragmentary reports said about 100 prisoners may have been killed in the pre-dawn fighting. Official confirmation was lacking.

The fight broke out after U. S. troops and a battalion of Marines relieved South Koreans who earlier had allowed some 25,000 anti-Reds to flee four other camps.

The embattled camp at Ascon City, near Seoul's port of Inchon, housed 1,500 prisoners. It was one of three camps housing North Korean anti-Reds which didn't join in the earlier breakouts.

THE FIGHT occurred during an attempt by prisoners to make a similar mass break.

Forces fighting the breakout were directed by Lt. Col. Alanson Leland, of Garner, Mass., who was the provost marshal on Koje Island during bloody Red prisoner riots there last year.

Ohio Senate To Vote Friday On Budget, School Subsidy

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Senate today received two House-passed bills to tighten controls over subsidies and prepared to vote Friday on the state budget and school subsidy measures.

Approval of school appropriations and the budget to run the state for the next two years would go a long way toward uncorking the bottleneck to adjournment of the Legislature now in its 24th week.

A third key log in the jam is a bill to tax heavy trucks for money to build new highways. Senators said that measure might come to a vote early next week if Republicans reached an expected agreement in caucus before quitting work for the week end.

The Senate Finance committee Wednesday night recommended passage of a proposed emergency appropriation of $100,000 for disaster relief in counties hit by tornadoes June 8.

The House passed the subsidy-control measures Wednesday and sent them to the Senate. Sponsors said they stemmed from recommendations of the Ohio Un-American Activities Commission.

ONE MEASURE provides for the Ohio attorney general to take over work of the commission that goes out of business Jan. 31. The same bill outlaws subversive organizations and carries a maximum $20,000 fine and 20 years in prison for "knowingly and willfully" attempting violent overthrow of the state or federal governments. The measure provides the same penalty for participating or contributing to subversive groups knowingly. The bill passed 193-2.

The other measure would make it prima facie evidence of Communist membership for public employees to refuse to answer questions at hearings of lawful investigating bodies concerning fitness to hold their positions. The vote was 108-13.

"It is long past time for us to be concerned about people who refuse to testify as to whether they are Communists," observed Rep. Virgil Perrill (R-Fayette).

Sen. C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens), Senate majority leader, reported that the House-approved budget bill definitely would come to a vote in the Senate Friday and that "prospects are good" for a vote on the school bill.

tion might delay the return of some 13,000 UN prisoners held by the Reds.
Official UN sources in Tokyo said they did not expect Rhee's move to wreck the armistice, but a delay was anticipated. The Reds might demand delivery of the escaped prisoners before signing a truce.

STAFF OFFICERS who have been putting the finishing touches on the armistice wound up their sessions at 12:30 p. m. and translators went to work immediately. They presumably were putting the document into English, Korean and Chinese.
The staff officers recessed indefinitely.

There was no announcement as to when the top-level negotiators would meet to approve the text.

Some observers said it was possible the armistice agreement would have to be sent to Washington and UN headquarters in New York for approval. This would take several days.

South Korean Troops Regain Two Positions

SEOUL (U-P) — South Korean troops fighting viciously, lost and then won back two frontline positions on the East-Central Front today.
Four hundred Chinese pushed the ROK's off steep, high M-1 Ridge, near Christmas Hill, at 6 a. m. but the ROK's banged back and retook the height about noon. It has been the scene of bloody fighting the past few days.

Another 400 Chinese battled hand and hand with South Korean troops at a frontline position south of Finger Ridge in midmorning, finally pushing the ROK's back. A few hours later the South Korean troops won back the position in more close-range battling.

Top Justices Return For Special Session

That was whether the Rosenbergs were tried under the right law. In granting his stay Wednesday, Douglas said there were serious doubts whether this was so.

WHEN STERN remarked that in granting the stay, Douglas was not bound by an earlier court refusal to halt the execution, Douglas remarked "That is correct."
Shortly after Douglas announced his decision Wednesday, Rep. Wheeler (D-Ga.) introduced a resolution in Congress calling for the impeachment of the justice. The resolution was put through the routine congressional hopper today.

Stern told the justices he doubts "the substantiality" of the point on which Douglas granted his stay. This was a question of whether the atomic energy act of 1946 may have superseded the 1917 espionage act under which the Rosenbergs were convicted.

Stern recalled that the case has made "countless trips" to the Supreme Court as well as the federal appeals court in New York.
And, he said, the government has proved the Rosenbergs made attempts to get atomic information for the benefit of the Soviet Union.

To this end, Stern said, Rosenberg tried to enlist the aid of young scientists.

SOON AFTER Stern began talking, Douglas said he felt the attorney was overlooking the fact that the conspiracy of which the Rosenbergs were convicted covered the years 1944-50. This included four years after passage of the atomic energy act.

Justice Robert Jackson remarked that all the overt acts alleged in the indictment against the Rosenbergs occurred after passage of that energy act.

Vinson announced eight of the justices approved the session. Only Justice Hugo Black, he said, disapproved.
Black has taken the position all along that the high tribunal should review the Rosenberg trial. He was joined on Monday by Justices Douglas, Frankfurter and Jackson, both in favoring a stay and in reviewing the trial. But the five-man majority composed of Vinson and Justices Reed, Burton, Clark and Minton prevailed.

Without today's session, Douglas' stay would remain in effect without further challenge for months.

Strike Threat Fades, 'Big Pour' Goes On

TOLEDO (U-P) — Threat of a city-wide protest strike by 10,000 AFL building trade unionists was fading today as 270 college boys and about 30 farmers went into the fourth day of "the big pour."

"The big pour" is the name given the building of 20 giant concrete silos at nearby Maumee. The Anderson Truck Terminal Co. started the 11-day project Monday, and pouring concrete continues around the clock, rain or shine.

The non-union workers, laboring in 12-hour shifts, had the towers about one-fourth of the way up today. When finished the silos will be 168 feet high and hold three million bushels of grain.

Harold Anderson, president of the Terminal Co., said his company had employed many union laborers on other construction jobs, but that he could not depend on recruiting enough union craftsmen for "the big pour" while the building industry was in its busiest season.

Wednesday Big Day For City Patrolman

Wednesday was a big day for Circleville State Patrolman Ray Hoylman.

First, the patrolman nabbed two Columbus young men in a stolen car in Shadeville.
Later, the patrolman arrested a man from his old home town who was wanted by Virginia authorities for bigamy and grand larceny.

At about 1 p. m. Wednesday, Hoylman, accompanied by Arthur Pipes, off-duty special Circleville officer, were cruising Route 23. At Shadeville, they spotted a car which appeared suspicious.

CHECKING OUT the car, the patrolman discovered the auto had been stolen Monday from Columbus. The two occupants, Charles Rawlins, 21, and David McIntyre, 16, said they had been to Gallipolis and Cleveland in the car and, when arrested, were on their way to Portsmouth.

Hoylman turned the pair over to Columbus police, who told him the younger of the pair previously had stolen three autos.
At about 8 p. m. Wednesday, Hoylman became suspicious of an auto parked in the new roadside park on Route 23 above South Bloomfield.

He said he recognized the driver as Richard Ray Nolan of DeGraff, Hoylman's own home town.

On file against the man were warrants from Roanoke, Va., seeking him for bigamy and the theft of $135 in cash and a set of barber shears.

Hoylman said the man also was wanted in Logan County for having jumped bond on a felony. He was held in Circleville jail for Roanoke authorities.

Speeders, Plate Violator Fined

Two speeders and a license plate violator have been fined a total of $95 and costs in Pickaway County courts.

Fined before the court of Circleville Mayor Ed Amey were: Leslie Meenach of Laurelville, $50 and costs for having failed to transfer his license plate. He was arrested on Route 23 by State Patrolman Gene Miller; and Harry Sponser of Pennsylvania, $20 and costs for speeding at 70 on Route 22, also arrested by Miller.

William Clark, 20, of Dayton, was fined $25 and costs before the court of Ashville Mayor Raymond Lindsey for speeding at 80 on Route 23. He was arrested by State Patrolman Ray Hoylman.

Rhee Orders POWs Freed

al, warned that anyone who tried to arrest them—"regardless of nationality"—would be dealt with severely. He said he had ordered them freed on Rhee's command.

High South Korean officials urged the people to feed, house and shelter the prisoners.

AS THE NEWS became known, the U. S. Eighth Army canceled all leaves for Allied troops.

The problem of rounding up the prisoners appeared almost impossible—many were South Koreans who had been impressed into the North Korean army. All could blend to the mass of other South Koreans unmarked by language or physical differences.

The UN Command was relying almost entirely on radio broadcasts asking the prisoners to return, even as South Korea's Radio Pusan broadcast Rhee's message urging civilians to house and feed them.

The UN broadcasts told the prisoners they had made a mistake in leaving the prison camps. They promised no reprisals and assured the prisoners they would be set free after an armistice is signed.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Harlan, U. S. commander of POW camps, conferred with Gen. Sup Yup Paik, South Korean Army chief of staff, without reaching any solution.

From Allied soldiers at UN headquarters in Tokyo there was a strong undercurrent of resentment against Rhee and his followers.

PFC Bill Nadolske of Akron, O., said: "We gave him everything. We do everything for him and now he turns around and kicks us in the teeth."

A total of $79 Pickaway Counties received $46,945 in aid for aged payments during May, an average of $53.41 per person.

Of that group, 857 persons subject to federal participation received $45,666, an average of $53.29 each. Another 22 persons, not subject to federal participation, were awarded $1,279 or an average of $53.14 each.

In addition, 56 counties shared in $1,814.12 during the month for health care.

Throughout Ohio, 109,346 persons received payments totalling $5,634 million during May, an overall average of $51.53 per person participating in the aid for aged program.

East Berlin Riot Toll May Reach 38

10,000 Soviet Armored Troops Encircle Red-Occupied Area

BERLIN (U-P) — The Russians extended their regime of martial law to areas adjoining East Berlin today in an effort to smash spreading unrest that erupted into bloody anti-Communist riots Wednesday.

An estimated 10,000 Soviet armored troops encircled Berlin's Russian-occupied sector.
Unconfirmed reports said from 23 to 38 persons had been killed in half a dozen cities and East Berlin Wednesday.

A Russian firing squad today executed a German accused by the Soviet Army Command of organizing the anti-Communist riots in East Berlin.
The Communist police radio announced the martial law edict for Potsdam, where the Soviet army had its headquarters in East Germany, and Babelsberg, where the Soviet Military Commander, Col. Gen. A. A. Gretchko, has his residence. A 10 a. m. to 6 a. m. curfew was imposed on the two suburbs.

Trucks plying the international highway between Berlin and West Germany reported anti-Red rioting had broken out in Magdeburg, Chemnitz, Dresden, Leipzig, Gera and other cities simultaneously with the cyclonic outburst here. The Communists' Radio Berlin repeated over and over that the cyclonic outburst yesterday of 50,000 workers against the Red regime—put down only by Soviet intervention—was steamed up by "Western agents."

The same charge was hurled by Moscow's Communist party newspaper Pravda and Red organs elsewhere.

WESTERN anti-Communist reaction to the riots also was generally uniform. In Washington, Bonn and other Western capitals the outbreak was viewed generally as a damaging blow to Soviet claims of creating a workers' paradise, a monkey wrench in the new Red peace offensive, and a powerful spur to pressure for unification of Germany.

Washington sources, citing reports of similar recent unrest in Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria, said it looked like Russia's hold on East Europe may be slipping even more than the West had hoped.

The Red Berlin radio announced the names of 18 youngsters under 20 who it said had been arrested in connection with the wild demonstrations. The broadcast identified the youths as Western agents—and listed all but two as Soviet zone residents.

The Reds also contended that the general strike which paralyzed the Eastern sector of the city yesterday had ended. "All patriotic workers are back on their jobs," it declared.

Further Cuts Proposed In Foreign Aid
WASHINGTON (U-P) — The House goes to work today on a controversial $4,998,732,500 foreign aid bill for next year, and Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis.) said cuts of another one billion dollars will be proposed.

The measure now carries 476 million dollars less than President Eisenhower urged Congress to accept as an "honest" minimum. It is $2,602,000,000 less than recommended by former President Truman.

Voting on proposals for deeper cuts may start tomorrow. The bill is only a ceiling for the year starting July 1. Actual appropriations will come later.

A fight is likely also on an administration - opposed amendment to withhold more than one billion dollars of military aid to Europe until an international army is approved.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

CHARLES NICELEY
Charles Niceley, 77, died at 5 p. m. Wednesday in the Pickaway County Home, where he was admitted in March.

Mr. Niceley was born Nov. 13, 1876, in Franklin County, son of Jacob and Margaret Grooms Niceley.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Jones, of Williamsport; two brothers, Frank and William Niceley, both of Columbus; and a sister, Mrs. Laura Martin, of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Friday in C. E. Hill Funeral Home, Williamsport, with the Rev. Clarence Dettie officiating. Burial will be in Springlawn cemetery.

Friends may call in the funeral home.

U.S. Steel Boosts Price, Others Expected To Follow

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp. boosted steel prices an average of $4 a ton Wednesday, presaging industry-wide hikes which could send the nation's living costs spiraling.

Big Steel's action came five days after it granted an 8½-cent hourly pay increase to 170,000 employees represented by the CIO United Steelworkers.

It is the first rise in basic steel prices since a 35-day strike last summer which ended after the union won a 21½-cent hourly pay package increase.

Other steel producers are expected to follow U. S. Steel's lead and raise prices. They probably will adhere to a similar scale. However, President C. M. White of Republic Steel Corp. says his firm plans an increase of $5 to $10 a ton.

INDUSTRY - WIDE steel price boosts may be reflected in higher price tags for the many thousands of items which are made of steel. It is unlikely that manufacturers will absorb any such hikes, meaning the consumer ultimately may

Court Decides Against GM

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has refused to review a decision that General Motors Corp. infringed a patent on a folding top for automobiles. The patent is owned by John W. J. Ackermans.

The decision was given by the U. S. Circuit Court in Baltimore. In addition to holding the patent valid and infringed, the Circuit Court ruled Ackermans should be awarded damages.

General Motors appealed to the Supreme Court but the highest tribunal Monday declined to hear the case. The refusal lets the lower court decision stand unchanged.

General Motors' appeal said the Circuit Court decision affected companies producing more than 64 per cent of the automobiles in this country.

The WSCS meeting for June was held in the church last Wednesday. The new president, Mrs. Bethel Wilkins, presided. Twenty members and four visitors were present. A motion was made to purchase new guide books for all officers of the society. A donation was given to the M.Y.F. to assist members for a week's outing at Lancaster Campgrounds. The women of the church accepted July 15th as the date to serve dinner at the Circleville Stock Sales Barn. Annual picnic was announced for July 22, at Mount City, with plans of the group touring Adena in the afternoon. Program followed by Mrs. George Skinner and Mrs. Van Meter Hulst. The subject was "Youth," which was presented in a form of a panel group, with Mrs. J. C. Roberts, Mrs. Hoyt Martin, Miss Jolene Patterson and Miss Iris Wallace assisting in the readings. Benediction was given in unison at the close of the meeting. Two contests followed. Mrs. Everette Hoskins and committee served refreshments.

By James Marlow

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of four articles on the Air Force revolt against the Eisenhower defense budget.)

By DON WHITEHEAD
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's defense budget has been challenged as one that imperils U. S. security by clipping the Air Force's wings.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, has made that serious accusation. The general wants Congress to override the administration and provide money for a 143-wing Air Force rather than wait for a complete new review of U. S. military needs by the incoming Joint Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council.

Eisenhower has told the nation: "We are not going to cripple this nation and we are going specifically to keep up its air power."

But Vandenberg testified before a Senate committee: "I feel that under the present budget the delay in reaching the proper strength of the Air Force is endangering national defense."

Now, in those two statements somebody is wrong. Both men can't be right—not if they are working from the same estimates of the world situation.

The key to these contradictions appears to be that Eisenhower and his civilian defense chiefs base their planning on one estimate of the danger of Soviet attack and the air power needed in the near future, while Vandenberg bases his position on a different—and more alarming—estimate.

Thus if Vandenberg is right then the U. S. should gear up fast. If the administration assessment is correct, then obviously there is time for a new look at the entire picture.

Let's take a look at how this situation developed:

Back in 1951 under the Truman regime, the Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed on strength levels for the Army, Navy and Air Force which they considered a safe minimum.

The buildup goal for the Air Force was 143 wings. The number of planes in a wing varies according to the mission. For example, there are 30 bombers in a wing—but a fighter wing consists of 75 combat planes.

Military men estimated that by 1954 Russia would have the potential for all-out atomic attack on the U. S. They aimed for 143 wings by that year, but later shifted their sights to mid-1955.

Congress appropriated billions. In the past three years, the U. S. spent about $101,740,000,000 on rearmament and the Korean War.

The Air Force began expanding. Contracts were made, plans were made for bases and training of personnel.

Then the administration changed. Eisenhower entered the White House and chose Charles E. Wilson of General Motors as his defense secretary.

Wilson immediately froze construction of new bases not deemed vital. He reduced personnel estimates and went about the business of seeing how and where military spending could be cut.

Wilson and his deputy, Roger M. Kyes, made statements clearly indicating they did not think Russia was ready for war either in the air or industrially. Eisenhower rejected any "crisis year" approach to the defense buildup.

Wilson took a look at the plane production schedules. He found the aircraft industry had fallen behind in combat plane deliveries as much as 30 per cent. He figured the Air Force couldn't reach the 143-wing goal under any circumstances before December, 1955.

Wilson found, too, that the Air Force was making contracts in which the "lead time" for deliveries was as much as three years in advance. He decided this lead time could be cut to two years and therefore the Air Force wouldn't need so much money for advance financing.

Besides, there was on hand 28 billion dollars that the Air Force hadn't spent. The lag in production had thrown the whole program out of gear.

Wilson and his aides made no cutback in the combat plane production. They decided to keep production rolling—and even to strive to speed up deliveries.

But Wilson, with Eisenhower's

backing, wanted another look at that 143-wing goal. He fixed what he called an "interim" goal of 120 wings by 1955, with the final decision on the size of the Air Force to be based on a study by the new Joint Chiefs and National Security Council.

Vandenberg says if Congress will give the Air Force an extra $1.435,000,000 the 143-wing level will be reached by 1957. Wilson says he can achieve the same goal by 1957 if the new study justifies it, without additional money this year.

SCORN DAD'S CHECKBOOK

THE YOUNG MAN who went through college on his father's checkbook is passing from the scene, according to a cheerful bit of pre-Father's Day news just released. The rah-rah boys are now in the minority at leading colleges and universities, it is asserted.

In fact, a college survey reveals that nine out of every 10 young men seeking higher education are helping to pay their own way with part-time work. They do such things as act as pallbearers, gas stations attendants, elevator operators and tutors. Some go to school for one semester and work the next.

Officials say scholarship is aided rather than hindered under this system. Many who help pay their own way graduate with honors. And there is the added factor that those who have been helping themselves are looked upon with favor by concerns who seek to employ them. At Northwestern students earned more than $2 million in part-time employment, according to the director of student placement.

This is an indication of a general tendency today for young men to wean themselves from dad's checkbook. Thousands out of school are on their own resources, taking jobs in many instances at the bottom of the economic scale—which is not so far down at that.

There is no need to be concerned about American youth. The young recognize the shortcomings of their elders, and are determined to profit from their mistakes.

TAX RELIEF HOPES FADE

INABILITY OF BUDGETARY officials and Congress to effect more than token reductions in federal spending have blasted hopes for sizeable cuts in taxes in the foreseeable future. Worse, a balanced budget has not been achieved.

The administration has inherited a situation that cannot be reconciled readily with economy. A staggering national debt is one of the principal factors. In the case of foreign relief, present commitments are still in effect and must be met. The strongest corporation in a situation similar to that of the government would be faced by bankruptcy.

But a government cannot resort to bankruptcy. It cannot pay so many cents on the dollar and start over. Federal budgets for years to come will be high and must be met. There will be savings, many of which have already been put into effect.

But the nation is still in the red, and expenditures are still only slightly lower than in World War II, and a continuation of high taxes is inescapable.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The illness of Senator Robert A. Taft leaves his party and the Senate without his objective leadership, which is essential to the conduct of national business. Taft not only has been a capable Senator, but his selfless devotion to his country has gained for him a stature unusual in these days of expediency.

He has been the leader of the Senate during sessions in which either Republicans or Democrats had the majority because intelligent and patriotic Senators recognized his brilliant mind, his tremendous capacity for hard work and his objective morality.

Taft took his defeat at the Chicago convention without resentment. It was difficult for his partisans even to imitate his coldly objective appraisal of that situation. He did question the good taste of the shameful slogan "Thou Shalt Not Steal," a public relations stunt conceived by a vile mind. He insisted, however, that General Eisenhower could not have known that cheap underlings were using such unfair tactics, or he would have stopped them.

After the campaign, he took the position that when a member of a party enters a caucus or a convention, he is automatically bound by its decision. A believer in political parties, undoubtedly recalling the harm done by the Bull Moose defection in his father's day, he has never respected the mugwump. He delivered almost as many speeches in the campaign as Eisenhower; he traveled throughout the country. His loyalty to his party's candidate came perhaps as a shock to some of the so-called amateurs who then surrounded Eisenhower.

But to the Republican Party, Taft's contribution in the 1952 campaign was of paramount importance. The party was split. The opponents of Governor Thomas E. Dewey were so bitter that they planned to sabotage the campaign and the election, not because they were opposed to Eisenhower but because they hated Dewey. Many even spoke of a third party.

Taft threw himself into the campaign with the object of uniting the party. It was not only a matter of speeches; he spoke to individual leaders, to his own partisans. Toward the latter group, he was adamant; one could not be loyal to him and not give Eisenhower full support. It was a remarkable performance in sportsmanship, rarely witnessed in American politics.

During the pre-convention and campaign periods, Taft was beset by deep personal grief. His wife, Martha, who had long been his political associate and mentor, a woman of ebullient wit, had been struck down by a prolonged illness from which she has never altogether recovered. They had campaigned together during his many years in politics; in 1952, he had to go it alone. Bob never complained, but when, at a little party, he wheeled Martha into the room, among his friends, it was possible to sense how deep was his disappointment.

Bob Taft is a singularly honest man. The truth is so usual to him that friends often worry at his habit of speaking his mind with almost a youthful lack of inhibition. Intellectually objective, he places the facts on the table, as it were, and one has to take them or leave them. He knows no cant and recognizes no need for polite palliation.

DIET AND HEALTH

Important Health Precautions For Those Traveling Abroad

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ANYONE planning a trip abroad should consider certain health precautions that are very important when traveling.

Of course, before leaving this country, you should know what health requirements you will have to meet to re-enter the U. S.

Anyone returning from a trip abroad must present a certificate showing that he has been successfully vaccinated against smallpox in the past three years. This vaccination has to be verified on an International Certificate of Inoculation and Vaccination, and should have the official seal of the health officer of the city or state from which you come.

Children's Inoculations

If a child is traveling to Europe, it is a good idea to give him diphtheria toxoid inoculations. Everyone going to Mediterranean countries should be immunized against typhoid and paratyphoid.

Visitors to the Far East or South America should have a yellow fever inoculation. Those going to the Far East should be immunized against typhus and cholera as well.

If you are traveling by boat, it is well to discuss with your physician the possibility of seasickness. Many drugs are now available to prevent this complication. One known as dramamine was particularly effective in helping our service men alleviate the discomfort of seasickness, as well as air sickness, during the last war.

Many people are now flying to foreign countries. With the pressurized cabins of modern airplanes, not too much body adjustment is needed. Even for heart patients, air travel is relatively safe in this manner. This is true because the oxygen pressure is not lowered at all by the high altitude, and the atmospheric pressure is usually maintained at a level equal to eight thousand feet, not too high for many patients.

Before attempting a trip, you should have a thorough physical examination to determine if there is any physical defect which might mar your enjoyment. After all, you are going many miles away from your physician, and it will pay to be sure you are in the best of health before leaving.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. C. H.: I drink three quarts of milk daily. I am seventy-one years old. Will too much calcium from the milk hurt me?

Answer: Since excessive calcium is eliminated by the body, it is not likely that drinking large amounts of milk will be injurious to you. However, if you drink three quarts of milk a day, it may not be possible for you to eat all the other foods necessary to make your diet well balanced, such as fruits, vegetables, cereals and meat. For this reason it might be well to reduce the quantity of milk you are taking.

White House. If Ike's chief law officer argues for segregation, the GOP will lose support among racial elements in the great cities of the North and the Middle West, where Ike rolled up huge majorities last year.

But if the Attorney General files a brief or makes an argument in favor of racial mingling in elementary schools, Eisenhower's hope of Republicanizing the South or even holding Dixie's affection, will disappear. Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, an Eisenhower admirer, has said that he will withdraw state support of the public school system, if non-segregation becomes law.

The high court's request for a re-statement by the Eisenhower administration appears to be judicial redundancy. The government's anti-segregation position has been presented by the Truman administration, which used this issue to win votes, and the government is a continuing body. From a strict legal viewpoint, lawyers see no reason why Eisenhower's Attorney General should be dragged in as a last-minute intervener.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
INARTICULATE with rage, Carlotta sprang at Randolph, her hands like talons. Quick as she was, he was quicker. He struck her across the face with his open hand so savagely that she fell back onto the daybed.

An unguarded smile of pure pleasure crossed the doctor's face, as if this were something he had wanted to do for a long time. "You've had your own way too long," he said, standing over her. "Don't you ever threaten me again."

The Captain had watched this passage as impersonally as if it had been a cockfight. None of us was disposed to interfere between antagonists so obviously well matched.

"You dope peddler!" Carlotta screamed. "Your word against mine, Carlotta. And who is going to believe you?"

But the doctor had overdone it. Perhaps driven by his long-suppressed wish to get even with Carlotta, perhaps overuse of his ability to manipulate other people, perhaps inwardly uncertain and so unsteady, he had miscalculated, and he had gone too far. The X-factor took over in the person of little Gay.

She began to cry. "I didn't say it, Randy. Carlotta said it. I never told anybody. I promised you, and I never told. You will let me have a shot now, won't you? It's been so long..." Randolph whirled on her. "What are you talking about? I've told you again and again that I cannot do anything of the kind. Be quiet now."

He had never been more commanding, but it did no good. Gay's thirsty nerves tortured her past caring for anything except to get relief. "But you can! You know you can! You had fifteen thousand dollars' worth on board. Opdyke told me so! He told me you were smuggling. He knew I wouldn't tell. Oh, please, Randy. Please, please. You never made me wait so long before."

For a minute I thought Randolph was going to hit Gay too, and then I would have interfered. But he thought better of it. With an almost superhuman effort at self-control he collected himself and tried to pull these smoking chestnuts out of the fire.

"Poor Gay," he said soothingly. "Poor dear. If I had any morphine I would give it to you, really I would. I would not let you suffer." He turned to the rest of us. "She is imagining things."

Acute disbelief was registered on every face in the room, and the doctor was smart enough to see it.

"To tell you the truth," he said, "I do usually carry a small store of sedatives and anodynes, dealing as I do with highly nervous patients. But the events of the last few days have quite exhausted my supply."

Nobody was buying this one, but again Gay made it unnecessary for us to say so. She had gone entirely out of control. Only one thing obsessed her.

"I know what you are trying to do, Randy," she wailed. "and I will. I'll do it now. Nothing matters anyway, now that Larry's gone. Yes, I shot Opdyke. I don't care if I did. He was awful. When Larry and I were first lovers, it was in his house on Majorca, and he thought it was fine, because he hated Carlotta. Then he was going to help Larry get a divorce, but later, he—he wanted me to leave Larry for him, and when I wouldn't he said he would run us both. He would tell Larry I took dope—I guess Randy must have told him—and he would tell Carlotta...and...and stop Larry's money. That night before dinner, he told me to meet him on deck at eleven-thirty and give him my final answer. I was afraid to tell Larry, but I got his gun and—I didn't plan to do anything with it, really—but I thought maybe I could scare him. I begged him and begged him to let me alone. But he laughed. He laughed, and I ran back to the passageway, and turned around, and I guess the gun went off...and I was so scared I threw it at him, and ducked into the ladies' room, and didn't come out until I heard people around. But I didn't see him fall overboard. I didn't see him fall down at all. I didn't know he was dead until I came out again...Oh, it was awful! I couldn't tell anybody, and I went on and on, and then I did tell Larry a little bit about it, and I guess he thought he could save me, or else he just didn't want to live...and I don't either, now."

She was sobbing wildly now, and instinctively I took her in my arms. Perhaps she was the murderer, but I could not think of her as evil—only lost, tormented, infinitely pitiful. Lost in a maze of false values and easy answers, driven from catastrophe to catastrophe. She raised her ravaged face from my shoulder.

"That's everything I know. Now you can all go home. Now, Randy, can I have a shot?"

"I tell you," Randolph said, and this time he carried conviction. "I haven't any."

The Captain, who seemed impervious to human suffering, got up out of his chair with something suspiciously like a sigh of relief. "Well, I guess that does it. He's go up and tell the helmsman to make for port. I'll watch the prison myself till we get there. No need for the rest of you to stay."

He pulled out Robert's little gun from his hip pocket and laid it on the table beside the chair. "Oh no, Captain Jonas," Robert said quietly. "There is much too much left to explain."

"What do you mean?"

"Are we to believe that Miss Walton got hold of enough morphine to poison Todd and Macbeth, and didn't save a little for her own needs? It isn't logical."

I felt like cheering for him. Gay was so beaten down, so much in need of help.

"I suggest," said Robert, suavely, "that that morphine came out of the doctor's supply. I also suggest that you read us the letter in the safe."

With a queer flap of his hand which might have meant exasperation or resignation, the Captain turned without a word, and twiddled with the dials on the safe behind a panel in the corner. Randolph had gone an ashy gray, but he made one more try for himself.

"Just a minute. It is true that I had a large supply of morphine on board. It was not for illegal purposes, but to economize by buying at a cheaper rate. However, that is neither here nor there. The fact is, and I realize I should have mentioned it before, the drug is no longer in my possession. I was robbed of it two days ago. I suppose some of the crew..."

Brown snorted. Jonas did not look around. I was aware of a sort of quickening of attention in Robert, like a hunting dog pointing a covey of quail. The doctor looked around the silent room, and mopped his brow again.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, June 18 — The Supreme court's failure to pass upon the broad question of segregation in the nation's elementary school system at this session will make 1954 a needlessly turbulent and difficult year. It creates racial and political bitterness on the eve of Congressional elections at a moment when the world crisis demands American solidarity.

It will embarrass President Eisenhower, not only in his relationship with Capitol Hill, but also if he runs again in 1956. It will place every congressman seeking re-election, on the spot.

Their difficulties, however, are unimportant by comparison with the threat which the delay in a final ruling means to this country's world prestige. The dilatory handling of this problem diminishes our authority in improving the international situation.

In every area where the United States combats Russia in the cold war, Moscow's great ideological weapon is that this country discriminates against racial minorities, especially the colored people. In Asia, it is their principal sales talk. By their cautious approach to the question, the Supreme court members tend to confirm the Kremlin's thesis.

ARGUMENT DELAYED — The jurists ruled, a few weeks ago, against segregation in all public eating places in the District of Columbia. But it set next October for further argument on non-discrimination in elementary schools throughout the country.

It should be noted that previous rulings against segregation have dealt only with college and graduate institutions. This is the first case involving grammar grades.

The Vinson body said that it needed further information on the question, although it has been argued back and forth before them and lower courts for more than a year. Every possible argument, pro and con, has been uttered.

For these reasons, and in view of the need for a prompt settlement for domestic and foreign considerations, a final decision had been expected at this term, which is about to conclude.

STATEMENT WANTED — The

high tribunal also introduced what may be regarded as a political footnote into this historic and explosive controversy. It said that it would like to hear the views of Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. Thus, it asked for a judicial, rather than a campaign, statement on this issue from the Eisenhower Administration.

Now, Ike has been rather "cagey" on this sensitive problem, in view of his 1952 and current strength in the South. He believes that racial questions, especially FEPC, should be settled by the states rather than the federal government. He advocates non-segregation in the defense establishment and the District of Columbia, which is federal territory.

But he has not declared himself on segregation versus non-segregation in all its various nationwide manifestations. He gives the impression that he would prefer to have the courts and the state legislatures solve the politico-social-economic dilemma.

No matter what stand Brownell takes, it is bound to harass the

Annual Inspection Held By Order Of Eastern Star

Honored Guests Are Introduced

Annual inspection of Circleville Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star was held Tuesday evening in Masonic Temple.

A dinner for 243 members and guests was held in the dining room of the Temple preceding the exercises. Tables were decorated with a red, white and green color scheme. Roses centered the arrangements.

Mrs. John A. Evans, worthy matron, and George Fishpaw, worthy patron, presided at the meeting. Honored guests present were:

Worthy grand matron of Ohio, Marguerite Steele, of Mt. Healthy; worthy grand patron of Ohio, Victor H. Blanke, of Sidney; past grand matrons of Ohio, Zella Watkins of Cleveland, Luella Dolby of Groveport, Fairy B. Gingery of Columbus and Marie L. Hamilton of Circleville; and grand representatives Eleanor Geist, Colorado, of Cleveland, Roberta Blanke, Michigan, of Sidney, and May Armstrong, New Jersey, of Kingston.

Grand chapter officers were: grand Ruth, Florence Moodie, of Cleveland; grand Electa, Elizabeth Schiebel, of Columbus; grand warden, Martha Newell, of Cincinnati; and deputy grand matrons, Lucy Rannlaw and Esther Dearius, of Groveport.

Worthy matrons and worthy patrons from fourteen neighboring towns and the state of Oregon were present.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cook were in charge of the decoration. Red roses and crystal candelabra centered the tables where refreshments were served at the end of the meeting.

Final meeting of the chapter until Fall will be held June 23.

American Legion Auxiliary Installs Its New Officers.

Banquet Held In Franklin Inn

Members of Circleville's American Legion Auxiliary held an installation banquet Monday in Franklin Inn, preceding the ceremony which was held in the Legion home. Mrs. Orin Dreisbach, past district president, installed the following officers:

Mrs. Harry Lane, president; Mrs. Bess Simison, first vice-president; Mrs. Neil Merriman, second vice-president; Miss Elizabeth Hilliard, secretary; Mrs. Norman Ritter, treasurer; Mrs. Emmet Evans, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Harold Cook and Mrs. Stanley Peters, color bearers; and Miss Maggie Mavis, chaplain.

Mrs. Lane appointed the following committee chairmen for the coming year: Mrs. Norman Kutler, Americanism; Mrs. Wilma Warner, child welfare; Mrs. Dreisbach, historian; and Mrs. Harold Cook, rehabilitation.

The executive committee will consist of Mrs. Emmitt Morgan, outgoing president, Mrs. Robert Shadley and Mrs. Warner.

A past presidents' pin was presented to Mrs. Morgan and a gift to Mrs. Dreisbach.

Members will meet at 6:30 p. m. Monday in the Legion home to go to Veterans hospital, Chillicothe, for their monthly visit and program of entertainment. Transportation will be furnished.

I LOST 25 POUNDS MY SON LOST 20 POUNDS

CAMPBELL, OHIO — "With the help of wonderful Rennie Concentrate I have lost 25 lbs.," writes Mrs. Pauline Smith, 262 Tremble Ave., Campbell, Ohio. "I weighed 170 lbs. and came down to 145 lbs. Also my son was overweight and he started to take RENNEL. He has lost 20 lbs. from 190 lbs. to 170 lbs. Both my son and I feel so much better now and we have more energy. We also have a number of friends who are taking RENNEL now and like it very much as it is doing for them what it has done for us."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid RENNEL at your druggist, mix as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it to the maker for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment reducing with RENNEL. Costs only $1.40. Ask for free booklet on reducing.

How To Block Depression Is Study Topic

More Advertising, Research, Greater Production Offered

NEW YORK (AP)—How to ward off a business slump — or lick one if it develops when defense spending eases — is being studied today by many businessmen.

Some are sure they've found good answers — increased advertising, greater output and selling effort, research, new products. Here's a sampling:

"Invest heavily in telling the world about your product through advertising," counsels Lee Hastings Bristol, president of Bristol Myers Co. He says that gives a company competitive advantage over any rival who tries to retrench. Bristol says his own company did just that during the depressed thirties.

He also plugs hard for "putting educational content into advertising as a public service" — his own firm stresses its dental health claims for an ammoniated chlorophyll toothpaste.

Such advertising by the industry has increased the use of dentifrices 5 per cent since 1945, Bristol says, with population growth playing only a minor part.

An increase in advertising expenditures, with or without a Korean truce, is urged by W. W. Wachtel, president of Calvert Distillers Corp. — a sentiment that should please the members of the Advertising Federation of America. Ad spending is now about seven billion dollars a year, but 3 per cent of present national income would be 9½ billion dollars. Wachtel counsels businessmen against "timidity and defeatism."

A good word for advertising in America also is being spoken in France, according to Richard L. Blum Jr., president of Julius Wile Sons, importers of wines and liquors.

Just back from a visit to France, Blum says the success of the cognac people in uniting for a promotion campaign in this country is inspiring other groups in France to unite for advertising campaigns here to try to boost sales of French wines, champagnes and liquors. The supply for export to America will be ample this year, Blum says, and prices should show little change.

More production is the Ford scheme. The motor firm aims at 20 per cent greater output—and therefore 20 per cent greater sell-

Defendant Found Sitting In Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An alert policeman has averted the possibility of Garrison Harris being called as a prospective juror in his own grand theft case.

Patrolman P. B. Le Page noticed something familiar about one of the jurors yesterday when he visited a courtroom. It was Harris, who later admitted he is awaiting trial next Wednesday on the theft charge.

He was promptly ejected from the jury panel. The case on which he was sitting is continuing with 11 jurors.

Air Conditioning on wheels* comes of age!

NOW you can have a car that's as comfortable on hot days as your air-conditioned home, office or favorite theater.

Now you can ride in draft-free coolness at the temperature level you choose—even when the outside reading is 110° and more.

Now you can take a full complement of passengers through the thick of traffic on a sweltering day—and each one of you will keep looking and feeling fresh as a daisy at dewtime.

But note this: what Buick put into its AIRCONDITIONER goes far beyond the usual.

For the advanced design of this Buick unit provides dual roof ducts that distribute up to 300 cubic feet of cooled, freshened, filtered, air per minute to all parts of the car interior evenly and constantly—without icy blasts and drafts on your neck, shoulders, legs.

Of course, the Buick AIRCONDITIONER is automatic.

You switch it on, choose the temperature setting you want—and that level of coolness is maintained constantly. It thoroughly conditions the air around you—automatically. It carries off heat, stale air, tobacco smoke—automatically. It continuously introduces outside air into the system—automatically.

Father—Tall Tower As The Son Grows Up

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (P)—Father's Day is on the horizon, and already fathers are feeling sheepish about it.

They are not sure whether they like a day in their honor. Or at least they pretend to feel this way.

"It just means I will be sandbagged by all those odd presents I escaped last Christmas — the strange gifts women think men yearn for," said one father. "and, naturally, I'll then have to take the whole tribe out to dinner, pick up the check—and pay later the bills for the gimmicks mama and the kids gave me."

Father is not used to being a hero in this civilization, even for a day. It is a bit different with Mother's Day. Motherhood is a symbol of lonely heroism in any age, and a true symbol. But for some reason nobody, so far as I know, has ever built a statue to "The pioneer father."

There should be such a statue. If I designed it, it would be a tired, patient old bull, the wrinkles of muscled duty showing in his flybitten shoulders, as he bent his horns down to protect his mate and brook against the wolf of life and time.

I have never been a father. But my old man was, and a good one, too. I appreciated him before his death, more than 15 years ago, but I never really told him so, although I think he knew. Men often feel a kinship between each other that neither puts into words. Men are shyer than women.

Even so, I have always regretted I didn't say more to my dad. It cannot hurt to tell your heart. And I write this only for sons whose fathers are still alive, to whom they can still say "thank you"—along with sending them that necktie.

My dad was a coal miner's son and came up rough and strong. He married young, sired four sons quickly, and—a later sweet surprise—a daughter, my sister, Dolores.

She was the blessing of his later days, and he wore his heart to silence by hard work at 48. Boys are a lot of trouble to a father. But a daughter is a comfort. A boy begins to be a man at 5, and to pull within himself and be stubborn, and make his father feel his years. But a daughter restores her dad forever, protecting with her love the yearning for youth he needs.

All his sons gave dad more than his share of woes, although none of us ever robbed a bank or went to reform school. And he was always a strong wall of understanding. He was one of the parents who knew how hard it is for a human being to grow up. His sympathy was a bright shield when we really needed it, although he coddled none of us.

He was a tall tower in the desperate hour, the hour that a boy growing up feels to him, at least, is desperate.

My sister made him happy, his four boys gave him problems. In my case he couldn't understand why I insisted on going to college instead of staying in his grocery store and learning business. But as mother backed me, he backed us both. I earned most of my way, but there were a couple of years when dad didn't get a new suit.

There are so many things a man can remember when he recalls a dead dad. About the time I got in a car wreck, and he came and drove me back to college, feeling out of place in a fraternity house in his rough suit, and made no complaint at all. As

I hadn't been at the wheel, he thought my broken jaw and dislocated hip would give me enough to think about. They did—for the rest of my life.

When I was a child he would give me a dime and say, "Now don't spend all that on one girl, son." I give my little goddaughters a quarter today and say, "Now don't spend all of it on one boy, girls." And they laugh at the idea that any girl would ever spend a whole quarter on a boy. So family jests go down through generations.

There must be millions of Americans who on this Father's day will recall warmly the dad that isn't there to praise. This is the flower of remembrance I would plant upon my own one's grave:

"Life may not have given you what you wanted. But you are not forgotten, after these years, by those you created—and stood by. If I were a dad I could only ask I might be as fine a one as you were. One of your sons, speaking for all of your children."

1953 Campaign Sets New Record

NEW YORK (P)—A record 5½ million dollars was contributed to the 1953 March of Dimes, Basil

O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reported today.

The total was 24 per cent higher than the record set last year.

Ex-President Shows Relaxed Look of Man Without Worries

(Editor's Note: Ernest B. Vaccaro covered Harry S. Truman as an Associated Press Washington correspondent when Truman was a senator from Missouri, then was assigned to the White House to cover him as President for nearly eight years. Passing through Kansas City recently, Vaccaro looked up his old friend.)

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON (AP)—It was late of a hot Missouri Sunday afternoon.

The gray-haired man with a tan to match his smartly creased summer suit grinned through the crowd gathered in front of the Alladin Hotel.

He had driven in from Independence, he explained to this reporter, to welcome two automobile caravans from Texas and Oklahoma on their Kansas City stop en route to the National Junior Chamber of Commerce convention in Minneapolis.

Harry S. Truman, former President of the United States, betrayed no impatience whatsoever that one delegation was late.

"The only thing is that I promised Mrs. Truman I'd hurry home and move some furniture out of our bedroom so it can be painted tomorrow," he confided. "I don't want to be too late."

He looked years younger than when he left the White House. He looked more adjusted to private life than during his first few weeks back in Missouri. A long rest in Hawaii had accustomed him to moving at a slower pace.

Signing of a contract for the memoirs he intends to write and making plans for the future have provided the work he needs.

He is, he said, a happy man—

"I tried to leave my worries at the White House door."

He was eager for word of members of his old White House staff, congressmen, senators, newspapermen and others. He'll see many of them when he visits Washington next week. From Washington he'll go to Philadelphia to speak on

Farmers Asked To Store Own Wheat Crops

Ohio wheat raisers are being urged to provide a maximum of on-the-farm storage for this year's record crop.

The recommendation—from the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative—came on the heels of an announcement by the U. S. Department of Agriculture placing the expected U. S. wheat crop at 1.32 billion bushels, nearly 40 million bushels above that forecast only a month ago.

According to W. Norton Woods of Maumee, "Even without the increase in crop predicted, we face a very acute storage problem. Ohio's crop is expected to reach 61 million bushels, compared to 55 million last year."

"At present, the cash price to the farmer for July delivery is between $1.70 and $1.75 per bushel. With the limited amount of storage available, prices are expected to dip even further at harvest time. And there simply is not enough commercial storage available."

WOODS ALSO announced the Bureau is working with the Ohio quality wheat committee and the Ohio Production and Marketing Administration (PMA) in preparing a list of bin requirements and steps to be taken to preserve the quality of farm-stored wheat, so farmers can participate under the government loan program.

He said: "If the majority of Ohio farmers are to participate in the loan program, farm storage is our only answer. Wheat can be stored satisfactorily on the farm if certain precautions are followed."

The farm loan rate in Ohio ranges from $2.25 to $2.31 per bushel, depending upon the county. Although PMA directs the loan program and periodically inspects the wheat under loan, it is still the farmers' responsibility to maintain both the quality and quantity.

Farmers can get copies of "Requirements for Safe Storage of Wheat on the Farm" at local elevators within a few days.

June 26 and to New York for another speech on the 29th.

The conversation was interrupted by a telephone call. Would Truman like to visit in the manager's suite? He would, and he did.

The manager introduced his wife and small daughter. The child charmed the distinguished visitor immediately, chattering, dancing and showing her heavily laced fancy pants.

Watching the little girl, Truman was reminded of his daughter, Margy, as he calls Margaret, when she was that little.

He beamed when he was told everyone enjoyed her appearances on television shows.

"I don't get to see her on television here," he said rather unhappily. "They tell me she's getting better all the time. And nobody can say that she has her contract because her daddy's in the White House."

Finally the telephone rang; the delegates were on hand. Truman left.

They made little speeches in front of the hotel, and Truman told the delegates he hoped they had a successful convention.

He was made chief of the Oklahoma Junior Chamber of Commerce tribe and received a beautiful Indian war bonnet. Some of the visitors displayed some fancy Indian war dancing and whoops echoed for blocks in the otherwise quiet Sabbath.

The ex-President wouldn't put on the war bonnet, despite the plea of the photographers, but held it in his arms, the tail end trailing down to the sidewalk.

As he turned to go, Truman gathered the bonnet carefully into his arms and started down the street with the reporter to a garage, where he planked down his money with his parking ticket.

A big, shiny new car with all the modern gadgets was rolled out. Harry Truman climbed behind the wheel after putting the bonnet in the back seat, waved a "See you at lunch tomorrow" and rolled out into the traffic bound for Independence, 12 miles away, to move the furniture for Mrs. Truman.

'Log Skipper Beached, Jailed

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The captain of a log doesn't have the rights accorded the captain of a freighter, Edward Gutman has discovered.

The captain of the freighter told the Coast Guard he had to bring his big ship to a halt in mid-channel between San Pedro and Terminal Island last night.

He said a log ridden by Gutman was blocking his way, and Gutman yelled, "I'm the captain of this log and I'm not going to get out of your way."

The Coast Guard sent a cutter. Gutman, 32, a transient, was arrested on a drunk count. His log was beached.

Cir. BL All-Stars Drop Third Straight; Boys Club Winner, 20-8

Circleville's Little Bigger League All-Stars, still battling the tide against more experienced teams in the nationwide baseball competition, took another walloping Wednesday night at the hands of the Boys' Club nine of Columbus. The score was 20 to 8.

Sad tale of the contest in Ted Lewis Park was similar to that of the two previous official games played by the All-Stars.

Bobo To Rely On Body Attack Against Young

LONG BRANCH, N. J. (AP)—Carl (Bobo) Olson, who is to fight Paddy Young for the middleweight championship of this country in practically everybody's living room Friday night, is a pleasant, unscarred young man of 24 who learned his trade as a saloon bouncer in the tougher sections of Honolulu.

He makes his home now in San Francisco, where he has a wife and three children aged 6, 4 and 2.

He is completely confident he will defeat Young, the New York City toughy, probably on points, and expects to receive meager competition from Randy Turpin, the British champion, if and when they meet for the world 160-pound title.

Olson is living here in an old, ramshackle hotel which the locals claim once was the summer hangout of numerous of our presidents, including the ill-fated Garfield. He trains in a ring pitched just outside, near the swimming pool, though from all accounts and from what we have seen, Bobo hasn't worked too hard. He says he has no weight-making problem and, anyway, was in shape when he got here more than a week ago.

Olson has earned this shot at the title by a string of solid successes within the past couple of years. He suffered the only knock-out of his career at the hands of Sugar Ray Robinson, but came back to hold the Negro to a close decision in their second 15-rounder. Since then he has come on steadily.

Mostly, Bobo attacks to the body, wading in and leaning over and pumping both gloves to his opponent's middle. He doesn't plan to change against Young, whom he obviously holds in no great regard. He boxed only two rounds yesterday and doesn't intend to hit another lick until he climbs through the ropes Friday night.

"I've seen Young only once, and that was on television," he said. "I think he has a pretty good left. I can't say I'll stop him but I think I can outpoint him. I should know after a round or two. The reason I think Turpin might be tougher for me is that he's older and more experienced and has an awkward style. I saw a picture of his second fight with Robinson."

Sokolsky's These Days

After Eisenhower was elected, Bob Taft's only concern was that he should succeed in the Presidency. Impatient of criticism of Eisenhower's inexperience with the intricacies of national civilian administration, he set out to aid the President in every possible way.

For 20 years, the Republicans had waited for a Republican President, and Taft rejected party differences and party squabbles. Knowing that a political group, long out of power, found it hard to coalesce into a united party, he diligently devoted himself to that task and succeeded beyond expectation.

The friendship that developed between Taft and Eisenhower augured well for the Republican Party and the country.

His present illness is serious but not fatal and it is to be hoped that when Congress reconvenes in the Fall, Taft will be able to lead it to the successful election of 1954. It probably was some satisfaction that he was nicknamed "Mr. Republican."

During this last week, he must realize that to the entire Congress, to the men who work with him and know him best, Republican and Democrat alike, he is "The Beloved Senator."

Swift recovery, Bob. The country sorely needs forthright and honest men.

Plans Now Indicate 1953 Fair Is Good One; Premiums Upped

Tentative plans mapped out for the 1953 Pickaway County Fair, scheduled for Sept. 15-19, indicate this year's community get-together will offer enjoyment, education and relaxation for just about any taste.

Of prime interest to persons participating in this year's fair is a return to normal of the premium awards.

Fair Secretary Henry Reid said the 1953 Fair premiums have been returned to the same status they were during the 1951 Fair.

Prices for awards to exhibitors, except in junior fair events, were whittled last year in a move to trim expenses. The move prompted a trim, also, in exhibits.

THIS YEAR'S county fair books, showing the new premium lists, are to be available about Aug. 1.

A partial lineup of the major events of this year's fair indicate lagging gate receipts will be picked up comfortably by the attractions offered.

One of the big features will be a music festival, supervised by Budd Harden, with central Ohio bands competing for cash awards. The festival will begin with a parade of bands through downtown Circleville, winding out to the fairgrounds.

Other planned features will be a motorcycle race program, a stock car race, Lucky Lee Lott's auto thrill show, tractor-pulling contests, western horse show, farm implement parade and a new auto display program.

Reid said all ribbons issued during the 1953 county fair will feature the Ohio sesquicentennial seal.

In addition, the sesqui theme will be a part of the Jaycees' farm implement parade on Sept. 18, with local officials hoping for a turnout of all old-time farm implements to be in the parade.

AUTO DEALERS of the community also are expected to band together for a big display of their new cars.

This year's fair, hugely a 4-H Club event in the past, will be even bigger and better.

Saturday will be the crowning glory for the county's youths, beginning with a livestock parade in

May's Birth-Death Statistics Reported

Pickaway County health department has reported one birth and six deaths during May.

The lone newcomer on the month's list for the county branch was a boy. Four of the deaths were within the 60-to-80 year age range.

Circleville's city health department for the same period reported 33 births and 14 deaths.

Girls outnumbered the boys among the newest city babies, 18 to 15.

On the city's list, five of the deaths were in the 60-to-80 bracket.

Trial Date Set

BUCYRUS (AP)—Prosecutor John D. Sears Jr., said today Mrs. Gladys Hoffman, 45-year-old Circleville woman charged with the fatal stabbing of her husband, will go on trial July 7.

Salvation Army Readies Drive To Replace Collection Method

Perfecting a new organization plan to put local control units in various communities, the Salvation Army next week will conduct a fund campaign here to replace its former policy of frequent solicitations.

Under the new working setup now being completed, Salvation Army representatives will be within easier reach for the public to be served by the famed organization. A service unit committee for this purpose is now being organized in Pickaway County by Russell F. Nance, service unit representative from the divisional offices in Cincinnati.

Designed to help consolidate the new service arrangement and provide funds for countless needy cases aided by the organization, this year's drive here will be under the direction of Mrs. Joe Burns, N. Pickaway St.

Nance said Leland Pontius has accepted the position of campaign treasurer, and other appointees in the local group are to be announced later.

MAIN EFFORT in next week's drive for the Salvation Army will be concentrated on Monday night. Leaders of the campaign emphasized any contributions given will be appreciated.

Explaining the new plan to extend direct contacts into the individual communities instead of the regional control, Nance said:

"The theory behind the service unit scheme is that 'a neighbor near at hand is worth several experts far away'. The local committee will be drawn from people of many walks of life, so that a cross-section of representative citizens will serve as the eyes and ears, and hands and heart of the organization."

"They will construct a 'life net' with a view to rescuing those who would otherwise slip past the notice of their neighbors. The committee will not attempt any large-scale social work; in fact, its role will be to keep certain people off the relief rolls by meeting 'flash' emergencies as they arise—and not waiting until the bottom has fallen out of the family's economy before attempting too little too late, or adding

Big Du Pont Plant Project Here Now 10 Per Cent Finished

Safety Meeting Stresses Value Of Precautions

Assistant Job Chief Awarded Highly Coveted Honor

Size of the plant to be operated by the Du Pont Co. south of Circleville was given new emphasis Wednesday by the announcement the $10 million operation at this time is only about 10 per cent finished.

Construction is running several days ahead of schedule and completion is slated for late next year.

Disclosure that the job still has about 90 per cent to go before it is turned over to operating personnel was made by F. C. Baylis, assistant field project manager and principal speaker at a mass safety rally.

It especially impressed visiting observers, since a portion of the steel silhouette already in place traces the outline of a large production unit. The Circleville plant will be the first unit for commercial production of Du Pont "My-lar," a newly-developed plastic-like film tagged in advance for many industrial uses.

HELD AT THE project site about two miles south of here, the safety gathering was attended by supervisory officials, guests and approximately 400 construction workers and office employees. Guests were conducted on a tour of the project following the meeting.

Opening comments and introduction of guests was by E. S. Clark Jr., engineer in charge of the project's elaborate safety program.

Following the address by Baylis, Field Project Manager James E. McCook spoke on the need for more personal participation in the spirit behind all safety precautions.

A special teletype message of congratulation was received from T. L. Pierce, district superintendent for Du Pont.

ent for Du Pont. Pierce praised the safety record already achieved at the Circleville project and offered encouragement for an even more impressive achievement in the safety field.

Guests included the following: W. O. Simon, director of production in Du Pont's film department; Emory F. Ridlon, plant manager designate for the unit being built here; W. T. Blake, Ohio state industrial commissioner; J. H. Fluker, superintendent, division of safety and hygiene, Ohio state industrial commission;

M. E. Noggle, president of the Third National Bank, Circleville; E. G. Grigg, vice-president, Circleville Chamber of Commerce; A. V. Couch, manager, Ralston Purina plant, Circleville; C. T. Gilmore, local manager for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.; Ross Boggs, president of the Columbus Building Trades Council; and Ed Waller, business agent for the council's carpenter group.

EARLIER IN the day, local officials announced appointment of B. B. Deffenbaugh to serve as service superintendent under Ridlon. Deffenbaugh joined other company officials here for the rally.

Highlight of the afternoon program was presentation of the "safety testimonial award," high honor of the firm's engineering department, by McCook to Baylis.

Opening the speaking portion of the program, Clark called attention to the enviable safety record that has become an incentive for all Du Pont operations. He pointed out Du Pont has only about one lost-time injury case for every 100 reported in outside industry.

Clark said the Du Pont construction organization led by McCook here is determined to complete the Circleville project without a lost-time injury report.

"We mean business when we say no injuries during the Circleville construction," the safety engineer said.

Introduced by Clark, Baylis expanded on this aim and reviewed the many steps taken to have all employees on the project fully coordinated with the key safety theme—a "must" guide in all Du

Pont construction and operation efforts.

Baylis detailed the closely supervised safety setup that went into effect at the local project from the beginning. Adding special impetus to the safety program here is a company-wide safety drive under way during June.

BAYLIS ALSO stressed the high Du Pont safety record in comparison with general industry and revealed the firm at this time holds five world's records in safety. Construction work at the Circleville plant site already has covered 150,000 man hours without a lost-time injury case, he said.

"Your record here to date is one that you can be proud of," he told the project workers.

Approximately 200 more construction employees will be hired on the project before the anticipated peak of 600 is reached for the plant-building phase.

Baylis emphasized an alert attitude on the part of the individual worker is the base upon which safety records are built. He said the cause of on-the-job safety is dictated by "common sense" and added:

"There isn't a single thing to be gained by taking a chance."

Baylis said in his talk that inspection teams are constantly watching the project here for safety rule violations.

McCOOK, A VETERAN of 25 years in the construction industry and widely known here as top man in the local Du Pont construction job, was introduced by his chief aide.

Leading into an illustration on the benefits of a safety program, McCook told his audience:

"I have often been asked if I have actually seen a man die because of an accident on the job. I have not only seen one, I've seen several men die through such accidents, and I can tell you it gives a person a weird and strange feeling."

"I hope none of you ever has to experience it, because it's a feeling of utter helplessness."

"It's a sight that will nauseate you—it will make you sick. And it will make you realize that, with all of our modern science and medical accomplishments, none of it is of any avail when a man is dying. There just isn't a single thing you can do to bring him back!"

McCook referred to several instances during his career in which he watched men die after being injured while working. In all of them, he warned, gross negligence, carelessness and lack of pre-planning directly led to the men losing their lives.

"WE'RE HERE to work as a team," he said, "and I tell you now that safety is the most important segment of this task."

"I implore you as fellow workers on this project to resolve now that you'll go back to your jobs with that thought foremost in your mind—the thought that tells you, 'I will not let my buddy get hurt.'"

The safety rally, held outside the project's administration building, was the first of its kind held on the local Du Pont job.

Battle Flares In Prison Camp Near Inchon

100 Reported Killed As Marines Fight Anti-Red Captives

SEOUL, Friday (AP)—North Korean anti-Red prisoners clashed today in a bloody battle with U. S. Marines and soldiers at an Allied prison camp near Inchon.

First fragmentary reports said about 100 prisoners may have been killed in the pre-dawn fighting. Official confirmation was lacking.

The fight broke out after U. S. troops and a battalion of Marines relieved South Koreans who earlier had allowed some 25,000 anti-Reds to flee four other camps.

The embattled camp at Ascon City, near Seoul's port of Inchon, housed 1,500 prisoners. It was one of three camps housing North Korean anti-Reds which didn't join in the earlier breakouts.

THE FIGHT occurred during an attempt by prisoners to make a similar mass break.

Forces fighting the breakout were directed by Lt. Col. Alanson Leland, of Garner, Mass., who was the provost marshal on Koje Island during bloody Red prisoner riots there last year.

News Briefs

SANDUSKY (AP)—Erte County's second fatality in the tornado of June 8 was recorded today with the death of Mrs. Inez Roberts, 25, in Good Samaritan Hospital. Mrs. Roberts was hurt when the twister hit Ceylon, near here.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche today appointed Don M. Purdy of Celina probate judge of Mercer County to serve until Feb. 8, 1955. Judge Purdy succeeds John Meservey, who died May 30 after 21 years on the bench.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission said today it would add Channel 70 to the allocations at Bowling Green, O., for educational television use.

Ohio Senate To Vote Friday On Budget, School Subsidy

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Senate today received two House-passed bills to tighten controls over subsidies and prepared to vote Friday on the state budget and school subsidy measures.

Approval of school appropriations and the budget to run the state for the next two years would go a long way toward uncorking the bottleneck to adjournment of the Legislature now in its 24th week.

A third key log in the jam is a bill to tax heavy trucks for money to build new highways. Senators said that measure might come to a vote early next week if Republicans reached an expected agreement in caucus before quitting work for the week end.

The Senate Finance committee Wednesday night recommended passage of a proposed emergency appropriation of $100,000 for disaster relief in counties hit by tornadoes June 8.

The House passed the subsidy-control measures Wednesday and sent them to the Senate. Sponsors said they stemmed from recommendations of the Ohio Un-American Activities Commission.

Rhee Orders POWs Freed

TOKYO (AP)—South Korea revolted against the UN Command and its armistice terms today, freeing some 25,000 anti-Red Korean prisoners and announcing immediate steps to enlist most of them in its own army.

President Syngman Rhee's arbitrary order turned South Korea's anti-truce threats into direct action, catching his allies flat-footed and leaving them sharply resentful.

What effect it would have on the truce—now apparently only an arm's reach away—was not known. No official source would speculate.

In Seoul, a reliable source indicated Rhee has sent a flat "no" to President Eisenhower's June 6 appeal for South Korea to accept the armistice. The source quoted Rhee as telling Eisenhower South Korea would perish under the truce terms.

South Korean guards in four camps turned their backs as the prisoners fled into the morning darkness.

SMALL BANDS of Americans tried vainly to stop the exodus.

A few hours later, a high South Korean military authority said most of the prisoners would be enlisted in the ROK Army. That could add about two divisions to the 16-division ROK force.

Meanwhile, the UN Command said it handed the Reds a letter at Panmunjom reporting the ROK guards had been replaced by U. S. troops and that every effort is being made to recapture the 24,000 prisoners still loose.

There were reports the prisoners were being taken into private homes or hiding in the hills. Rhee had urged all civilians to help the prisoners.

The UN prisoner command disclosed one ROK guard was killed.

A-Spy's Mother Capital Bound

NEW YORK (AP)—The mother of condemned atom spy Julius Rosenberg flew to Washington today, hoping to make a personal appeal to President Eisenhower for mercy for her son and his wife, Ethel.

"I am going to plead for the life of my two children," Mrs. Sophie Rosenberg said.

in the breakout at the camp near Sang-Mudai, but gave no details. No other allied casualties were reported.

First reaction from observers was that Rhee's move would not keep the Allies from signing an armistice agreement.

HOWEVER, some sources said the Reds might balk and demand delivery of the prisoners. They were part of 46,380 anti-Red North Koreans and Chinese who refused to go home and thus became a problem that was resolved only last week after months of negotiations.

Rhee's order came last night. By 5 a. m. 25,000 prisoners had slipped away in the darkness and scattered.

With most of the 16,000 South Korean guards standing by idly, small numbers of surprised Americans tried to stop the flight with rifle fire, but they were too few.

Nine prisoners were killed and 16 wounded.

UN troops recaptured 971 prisoners, even as Lt. Gen. Won Yong Duk, South Korean provost marshal.

POWs' Release May Hurt Truce

Details Completed On Armistice Pact

MUNSAN (AP)—The draft of a Korean truce apparently was completed today but its fate might turn on President Syngman Rhee's open defiance of his allies in arbitrarily releasing 25,000 anti-Red prisoners of war.

Rhee's order opening the gates of four POW camps in this morning's darkness was in direct opposition to the armistice terms.

Even as the prisoners scattered, it appeared that all details of an armistice agreement had been wrapped up and the final text was being rushed to completion.

Preparations for exchanging thousands of war prisoners were rushed by both sides. UN officials speculated on whether Rhee's action would hurt the truce.

Top Justices Return For Special Session

Douglas' Reversal Could Send Pair To Deaths Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court met today in an extraordinary session which will decide whether atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg must go to the electric chair tonight.

All nine justices were present. Chief Justice Vinson called the court together to consider a petition by Attorney General Brownell that they override the action Wednesday of Justice William O. Douglas in granting a stay of execution to the husband-wife spy team.

In all its history, the court never before had been convened in special session for such a purpose.

If a majority agrees to overrule Douglas, the condemned atom spies could be put to death at Sing Sing Prison at 10 p. m. EST tonight as had been scheduled before Douglas issued his stay order or at any time before Saturday midnight.

THE JUSTICES met in closed conference for 15 minutes before the start of the public session.

Before the public session began, it was announced each side would have an hour and a half to present arguments.

Robert L. Stern, acting solicitor general, appeared for the government.

Stern began his argument two minutes after the court convened.

He said at the outset since Douglas granted his stay on grounds which had not been considered by the court previously, he would discuss only the one point issue.

Fire Damages Alaska's Main Military Port

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Fire and explosions destroyed millions of dollars worth of military installations and supplies last night at Alaska's main military port of Whittier, 72 miles southeast of here.

The rampaging, wind-blown flames in less than four hours destroyed three new warehouses, two docks and other buildings. Reports here and at Seward but not confirmed by the military said that a quantity of ammunition blew up.

Cause of the fire was undetermined and two unofficial versions were given. One said that a forest fire in adjacent timber swept into the town. The second said a boiler in one of the warehouses blew up to set off the blaze.

Three persons were reported critically injured in the boiler explosion. An Alaska Railroad yardmaster was believed to be the only other casualty.

Alaska Defense Command officials here said the port facilities were wiped out and no longer were usable.

The fire started at 5:45 p. m. and ate its way to the dock area within a few minutes.

Military officials declined to estimate the loss but admitted that it would run into the millions of dollars.

Ohio Moderator Names Assistant

WOOSTER (AP)—The Rev. David N. Roller, new moderator of Ohio's Presbyterian synod, has named the Rev. James F. Bolen of Newark vice moderator.

The new moderator, elected Tuesday, is pastor of Mansfield First Presbyterian Church and the new vice moderator is from the Second Presbyterian in Newark.

ATTORNEYS FOR ATOMIC spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and two rival lawyers congratulate each other on winning a stay of execution by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for the condemned couple. The Rosenberg defense attorneys are Emanuel Bloch (second from right) and John Finerty (extreme right). Ironically, the issue on which the Rosenbergs won their reprieve was raised by attorneys Daniel Marshall (left) and Fyke Farmer (second from left). They represented Irwin Edelman, Los Angeles writer, who claimed the Rosenbergs were improperly tried under a 1917 spy act. Meanwhile, Rep. William Wheeler (D), Georgia, introduces a bill in the House to impeach Justice Douglas for staying the execution. Wheeler said Douglas yielded to "vociferous pressure groups" when he took "himself the authority to grant amnesty to two proven spies."

Reports Of New Fire Aid Deals Hint Study Behind-The-Scenes

Reports of behind-the-scenes activity on questions of out-of-town fire protection were virtually confirmed here Thursday.

Mayor Ed Amey said he had relayed—prior to Council's meeting last Tuesday night—a request for fire protection for a large property owner near Circleville.

The question was directed to the Mayor after the first contact had been made with Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

Amey said he relayed the information that the property owner offered up to $100 a call for any runs made by the city fire department.

THE PROPOSAL, it was learned, was discussed in a side conference during the Council session, but was not brought out for formal consideration. Reasons for delaying action on the request were not known.

In the same unexplained manner, Council has delayed putting "on paper" an agreement with the county to cover fire protection for Pickaway County Children's Home and the county infirmary. County officials asked for the formal agreement some time ago.

Questioned on the status of both matters, Wise said he was aware of the property owner request and the county's request for a formal pact to cover the home and infirmary.

The Chief indicated he was puzzled by delay in acting on the proposals, but emphasized both

Ex-Agent Says McCarthy Was To Be Slain

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former FBI undercover agent testified today he heard a Communist boast last December that he had been picked by Communist leaders to kill Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The testimony came from Joseph D. Mazzei of Pittsburgh, who said the man who made the boast was Lou Bortz of Pittsburgh.

Mazzei said he was an FBI counter spy, posing as a Communist, when he attended a secret meeting in Pittsburgh at which Bortz announced "he was selected by the Communist party to do a job in the liquidation of Sen. Joseph McCarthy."

Rumors Spread Death Report Of Malenkov

BALTIMORE (AP)—Col. Ulius L. Amoss, who heads what is described as a private, world-wide intelligence service, said Wednesday night that rumors are spreading in the satellite countries that Georgi Malenkov has been slain.

Amoss stressed the reports were only rumor, but told the Baltimore Sun "it is a verified fact that Malenkov has been incommunicado for more than a month."

Amoss was chief of the East European division of the Office of Strategic Services during World War II.

Col. Amoss said the Russian premier has "not been heard, seen or heard from in the last 30 days."

Mazzei said Bortz was a member of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade in the Spanish Republican Army which fought the forces of Francisco Franco in the Spanish Civil War.

He said Bortz was in "the elite" group of a tough Communist underground, and active in training fellow Communists in the use of weapons.

Bortz, who it developed was seated among the spectators, was then called to the witness stand and asked whether he knew Mazzei.

Bortz, who gave his address as Rt. 6, Butler, Pa., refused to say on the ground that his answer might tend to incriminate him.

OSU Professor Remains Mum On Red Quiz

COLUMBUS (AP)—Byron T. Darling, dismissed Ohio State University professor, today refused for a second time to answer a long series of questions by a congressional committee on his reported Communist connections.

Darling again took advantage of the Fifth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution which, he said, protects him from testifying against himself.

His action closely paralleled the stand taken by his wife, Barbara Anne Darling, Wednesday when she refused 22 times to answer similar questions including the key one asked of both:

"Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist party?"

Transport Disaster Near Tokyo History's Worst Air Tragedy

TOKYO (AP)—A giant C-124 Globemaster pinwheel out of the murky sky near Tokyo today and crashed in flames carrying 129 Americans to their deaths in history's worst air disaster.

The Air Force said 60 bodies had been identified. The huge double-deck transport was carrying 122 Army engineers and airmen back to battle stations in Korea. The plane had a crew of seven.

There were no survivors. The Globemaster crashed seconds after taking off from the U. S. air base at Tachikawa, 25 miles west of Tokyo.

An eyewitness said the giant plane "somersaulted like a bird and plummeted to the ground."

A Japanese farmer, Masayasu Kinoshita, said "the huge plane came skimming over the trees by the highway. Two of its four propellers were not turning. Then it circled and crashed and exploded."

THE PLANE was a special flight for soldiers, not one of the regular courier runs between Japan and Korea.

The worst previous air disaster was the crash of another Globemaster near Larson Air Force Base at Moses Lake, Wash., which killed 86 last Dec. 20.

Associated Press Photographer Max Desfor reported from the scene:

"The plane crashed in a muddy rice field just in front of a bamboo grove."

"An Air Force major from Tachikawa said his men had removed nearly 130 bodies."

NAMES OF the dead will not be released until next of kin are notified.

The Air Force said there was some light rain and fog as the plane left Tachikawa, but the weather was not bad enough to ground aircraft.

It said there was a ceiling of about 1,000 feet and visibility of about one mile. A spokesman said the safety limits are a 250-foot ceiling and half-mile visibility.

Dulles Blasts Rhee's Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the South Korean government's release of many thousands of anti-Communist prisoners of war "was in violation of the authority of the United Nations Command."

Dulles made the statement to newsmen after discussing the Korean situation with President Eisenhower and other members of the National Security Council. He said: "President Eisenhower is communicating with President Rhee of South Korea in this sense."

Earlier the President had discussed the Korean prisoner situation with Congress members.

Prowlers Shoot, Beat Watch Dog

A Mt. Sterling Route 3 farmer has lost a watch dog to prowlers who staged a raid on his henhouse.

Cecil Deardruff of near Five Points told Deputy Carl White someone shot his dog four times early Wednesday about one-half mile away from the farmhouse. The dog was shot either with a rifle or pistol.

The dog still lived, however, and was cared for at the farmhouse.

Wednesday night, prowlers invaded the Deardruff henhouse. They finished the job on the dog by beating his head with a blunt instrument.

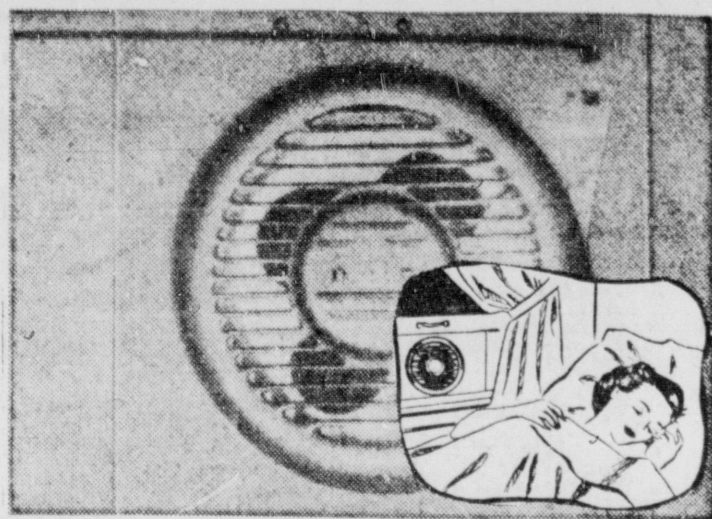

Deardruff told the deputy the dog was still alive when he found him Thursday morning, but that he soon died.

The WSCS meeting for June was held in the church last Wednesday. The new president, Mrs. Bethel Wilkins, presided. Twenty members and four visitors were present. A motion was made to purchase new guide books for all officers of the society. A donation was given to the M.Y.F. to assist members for a week's outing at Lancaster Campgrounds. The women of the church accepted July 15th as the date to serve dinner at the Circleville Stock Sales Barn. Annual picnic was announced for July 22, at Mound City, with plans of the group touring Adena in the afternoon. Program followed by Mrs. George Skinner and Mrs. Van Meter Hulse. The subject was "Youth," which was presented in a form of a panel group, with Mrs. J. C. Roberts, Mrs. Hoyt Martin, Miss Jolene Patterson and Miss Iris Wallace assisting in the readings. Benediction was given in unison at the close of the meeting. Two contests followed. Mrs. Everette Hoskins and committee served refreshments.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Mills were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mills Jr. and daughter Cinda of Washington C. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ackley of near Frankfort.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Remy were Thursday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Graves of Cincinnati. They visited in Kentucky.

Mrs. Harry Riggs and children Steve and Patty of Mt. Gilead and Judy and Timmy Keefer of Columbus, were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Binns. Steve Riggs, Judy and Timmy Keefer remained for a week's visit with their grandparents.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. U.S. Steel Boosts Price, Others Expected To Follow

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp. boosted steel prices an average of $4 a ton Wednesday, presaging industry-wide hikes which could send the nation's living costs spiraling.

Big Steel's action came five days after it granted an 8½-cent hourly pay increase to 170,000 employees represented by the CIO United Steelworkers.

It is the first rise in basic steel prices since a 55-day strike last summer which ended after the union won a 21½-cent hourly pay package increase.

Other steel producers are expected to follow U. S. Steel's lead and raise prices. They probably will adhere to a similar scale. However, President C. M. White of Republic Steel Corp. says his firm plans an increase of $5 to $10 a ton.

INDUSTRY-WIDE steel price boosts may be reflected in higher price tags for the many thousands of items which are made of steel. It is unlikely that manufacturers will absorb any such hikes, meaning the consumer ultimately may have to pay more for everything from pins to refrigerators.

U. S. Steel, largest steel producer in the nation, said over-all effect of the price changes represents an average advance of about two-tenths of a cent a pound for carbon steel products, which now will sell for 6 cents a pound or about $120 a ton. Along with this upturn, there are proportionate advances for alloy and stainless steel products.

Three more basic steel producers signed agreements with the USW yesterday giving nearly 35,000 workers an 8½-cent wage increase. They are Sharon Steel Corp., Wheeling Steel Corp. and Pittsburgh Steel Company.

This brought to 10 the number of firms signed up, including U. S. Steel, which set the pattern last Friday. About 420,000 of the union's estimated 600,000 members in basic steel now are under new wage pacts. They had been averaging from $2.06 to $2.16 an hour.

Court Decides Against GM

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has refused to review a decision that General Motors Corp. infringed a patent on a folding top for automobiles. The patent is owned by John W. J. Ackermans.

The decision was given by the U. S. Circuit Court in Baltimore. In addition to holding the patent valid and infringing the Circuit Court ruled Ackermans should be awarded damages.

General Motors appealed to the Supreme Court but the highest tribunal Monday declined to hear the case. The refusal lets the lower court decision stand unchanged.

General Motors' appeal said the Circuit Court decision affected companies producing more than 64 per cent of the automobiles in this country.

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of four articles on the Air Force revolt against the Eisenhower defense budget.)

By DON WHITEHEAD
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's defense budget has been challenged as one that imperils U. S. security by clipping the Air Force's wings.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, has made that serious accusation. The general wants Congress to override the administration and provide money for a 143-wing Air Force rather than wait for a complete new review of U. S. military needs by the incoming Joint Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council.

Eisenhower has told the nation: "We are not going to cripple this nation and we are going specifically to keep up its air power."

But Vandenberg testified before a Senate committee: "I feel that under the present budget the delay in reaching the proper strength of the Air Force is endangering national defense."

Now, in those two statements somebody is wrong. Both men can't be right—not if they are working from the same estimates of the world situation.

The key to these contradictions appears to be that Eisenhower and his civilian defense chiefs base their planning on one estimate of the danger of Soviet attack and the air power needed in the near future, while Vandenberg bases his position on a different—and more alarming—estimate.

Thus if Vandenberg is right then the U. S. should gear up fast. If the administration assessment is correct, then obviously there is time for a new look at the entire picture.

Let's take a look at how this situation developed:

Back in 1951 under the Truman regime, the Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed on strength levels for the Army, Navy and Air Force which they considered a safe minimum.

The buildup goal for the Air Force was 143 wings. The number of planes in a wing varies according to the mission. For example, there are 30 bombers in a wing—but a fighter wing consists of 75 combat planes.

Military men estimated that by 1954 Russia would have the potential for all-out atomic attack on the U. S. They aimed for 143 wings by that year, but later shifted their sights to mid-1955.

Congress appropriated billions. In the past three years, the U. S. spent about $101,740,000,000 on rearmament and the Korean War. The Air Force began expanding. Contracts were made, plans were made for bases and training of personnel.

Then the administration changed. Eisenhower entered the White House and chose Charles E. Wilson of General Motors as his defense secretary.

Wilson immediately froze construction of new bases not deemed vital. He reduced personnel estimates and went about the business of seeing how and where military spending could be cut.

Wilson and his deputy, Roger M. Kyes, made statements clearly indicating they did not think Russia was ready for war either in the air or industrially. Eisenhower rejected any "crisis year" approach to the defense buildup.

Wilson took a look at the plane production schedules. He found the aircraft industry had fallen behind in combat plane deliveries as much as 30 per cent. He figured the Air Force couldn't reach the 143-wing goal under any circumstances before December, 1955.

Wilson found, too, that the Air Force was making contracts in which the "lead time" for deliveries was as much as three years in advance. He decided this lead time could be cut to two years and therefore the Air Force wouldn't need so much money for advance financing.

Besides, there was on hand 28 billion dollars that the Air Force hadn't spent. The lag in production had thrown the whole program out of gear.

Wilson and his aides made no cutback in the combat plane production. They decided to keep production rolling—and even to strive to speed up deliveries.

But Wilson, with Eisenhower's

backing, wanted another look at that 143-wing goal. He fixed what he called an "interim" goal of 120 wings by 1955, with the final decision on the size of the Air Force to be based on a study by the new Joint Chiefs and National Security Council.

Vandenberg says if Congress will give the Air Force an extra $1,435,000,000 the 143-wing level will be reached by 1957. Wilson says he can achieve the same goal by 1957 if the new study justifies it, without additional money this year.

(Tomorrow: the relationship of the atom bomb to the size of the Air Force.)

SCORN DAD'S CHECKBOOK

THE YOUNG MAN who went through college on his father's checkbook is passing from the scene, according to a cheerful bit of pre-Father's Day news just released. The rah-rah boys are now in the minority at leading colleges and universities, it is asserted.

In fact, a college survey reveals that nine out of every 10 young men seeking higher education are helping to pay their own way with part-time work. They do such things as act as pallbearers, gas stations attendants, elevator operators and tutors. Some go to school for one semester and work the next.

Officials say scholarship is aided rather than hindered under this system. Many who help pay their own way graduate with honors. And there is the added factor that those who have been helping themselves are looked upon with favor by concerns who seek to employ them. At Northwestern students earned more than $2 million in part-time employment, according to the director of student placement.

This is an indication of a general tendency today for young men to wean themselves from dad's checkbook. Thousands out of school are on their own resources, taking jobs in many instances at the bottom of the economic scale—which is not so far down at that.

There is no need to be concerned about American youth. The young recognize the shortcomings of their elders, and are determined to profit from their mistakes.

TAX RELIEF HOPES FADE

INABILITY OF BUDGETARY officials and Congress to effect more than token reductions in federal spending have blasted hopes for sizeable cuts in taxes in the foreseeable future. Worse, a balanced budget has not been achieved.

The administration has inherited a situation that cannot be reconciled readily with economy. A staggering national debt is one of the principal factors. In the case of foreign relief, present commitments are still in effect and must be met. The strongest corporation in a situation similar to that of the government would be faced by bankruptcy.

But a government cannot resort to bankruptcy. It cannot pay so many cents on the dollar and start over. Federal budgets for years to come will be high and must be met. There will be savings, many of which have already been put into effect.

But the nation is still in the red, and expenditures are still only slightly lower than in World War II, and a continuation of high taxes is inescapable.

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

The illness of Senator Robert A. Taft leaves his party and the Senate without his objective leadership, which is essential to the conduct of national business. Taft not only has been a capable Senator, but his selfless devotion to his country has gained for him a stature unusual in these days of expediency.

He has been the leader of the Senate during sessions in which either Republicans or Democrats had the majority because intelligent and patriotic Senators recognized his brilliant mind, his tremendous capacity for hard work and his objective morality.

Taft took his defeat at the Chicago convention without resentment. It was difficult for his partisans even to imitate his coldly objective appraisal of that situation. He did question the good taste of the shameless slogan "Thou Shalt Not Steal," a public relations stunt conceived by a vile mind. He insisted, however, that General Eisenhower could not have known that cheap underlings were using such unfair tactics, or he would have stopped them.

After the campaign, he took the position that when a member of a party enters a caucus or a convention, he is automatically bound by its decision. A believer in political parties, undoubtedly recalling the harm done by the Bull Moose defection in his father's day, he has never respected the mugwump. He delivered almost as many speeches in the campaign as Eisenhower; he traveled throughout the country. His loyalty to his party's candidate came perhaps as a shock to some of the so-called amateurs who then surrounded Eisenhower.

But to the Republican Party, Taft's contribution in the 1952 campaign was of paramount importance. The party was split. The opponents of Governor Thomas E. Dewey were so bitter that they planned to sabotage the campaign and the election, not because they were opposed to Eisenhower but because they hated Dewey. Many even spoke of a third party.

Taft threw himself into the campaign with the object of uniting the party. It was not only a matter of speeches; he spoke to individual leaders, to his own partisans. Toward the latter group, he was adamant; one could not be loyal to him and not give Eisenhower full support. It was a remarkable performance in sportsmanship, rarely witnessed in American politics.

During the pre-convention and campaign periods, Taft was beset by deep personal grief. His wife, Martha, who had long been his political associate and mentor, a woman of ebullient wit, had been struck down by a prolonged illness from which she has never altogether recovered. They had campaigned together during his many years in politics; in 1952, he had to go it alone. Bob never complained, but when, at a little party, he wheeled Martha into the room, among his friends, it was possible to sense how deep was his disappointment.

Bob Taft is a singularly honest man. The truth is so usual to him that friends often worry at his habit of speaking his mind with almost a youthful lack of inhibition. Intellectually objective, he places the facts on the table, as it were, and one has to take them or leave them. He knows no cant and recognizes no need for polite palliation.

DIET AND HEALTH

Important Health Precautions For Those Traveling Abroad

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
ANYONE planning a trip abroad should consider certain health precautions that are very important when traveling.

Of course, before leaving this country, you should know what health requirements you will have to meet to re-enter the U. S.

Anyone returning from a trip abroad must present a certificate showing that he has been successfully vaccinated against smallpox in the past three years. This vaccination has to be verified on an International Certificate of Inoculation and Vaccination, and should have the official seal of the health officer of the city or state from which you come.

Children's Inoculations

If a child is traveling to Europe, it is a good idea to give him diphtheria toxoid inoculations. Everyone going to Mediterranean countries should be immunized against typhoid and paratyphoid. Visitors to the Far East or South America should have a yellow fever inoculation. Those going to the Far East should be immunized against typhus and cholera as well.

If you are traveling by boat, it is well to discuss with your physician the possibility of seasickness. Many drugs are now available to prevent this complication. One known as dramamine was particularly effective in helping our service men alleviate the discomfort of seasickness, as well as air sickness, during the last war. Many people are now flying to foreign countries. With the pressurized cabins of modern airplanes, not too much body adjustment is needed. Even for heart patients, air travel is relatively safe in this manner. This is true because the oxygen pressure is not lowered at all by the high altitude, and the atmospheric pressure is usually maintained at a level equal to eight thousand feet, not too high for many patients.

Before attempting a trip, you should have a thorough physical examination to determine if there is any physical defect which might mar your enjoyment. After all, you are going many miles away from your physician, and it will pay to be sure you are in the best of health before leaving.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. C. H.: I drink three quarts of milk daily. I am seventy-one years old. Will too much calcium from the milk hurt me?

Answer: Since excessive calcium is eliminated by the body, it is not likely that drinking large amounts of milk will be injurious to you. However, if you drink three quarts of milk a day, it may not be possible for you to eat all the other foods necessary to make your diet well balanced, such as fruits, vegetables, cereals and meat. For this reason it might be well to reduce the quantity of milk you are taking.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

INARTICULATE with rage, Carlotta sprang at Randolph, her hands like talons. Quick as she was, he was quicker. He struck her across the face with his open hand so savagely that she fell back onto the daybed.

An unguarded smile of pure pleasure crossed the doctor's face, as if this were something he had wanted to do for a long time. "You've had your own way too long," he said, standing over her. "Don't you ever threaten me again."

The Captain had watched this passage as impersonally as if it had been a cockfight. None of us was disposed to interfere between antagonists so obviously well matched.

"You dope peddler!" Carlotta screamed.

"Your word against mine, Carlotta. And who is going to believe you?"

But the doctor had overdone it. Perhaps driven by his long-suppressed wish to get even with Carlotta, perhaps oversure of his ability to manipulate other people, perhaps inwardly uncertain and so unsteady, he had miscalculated, and he had gone too far. The X-factor took over in the person of little Gay.

She began to cry. "I didn't say it, Randy. Carlotta said it. I never told anybody. I promised you, and I never told. You will let me have a shot now, won't you? It's been so long..." Randolph whirled on her. "What are you talking about? I've told you again and again that I cannot do anything of the kind. Be quiet now."

Life had never been more commanding, but it did not good. Gay's thirty nerves tortured her past caring for anything except to get relief.

"But you can! You know you can! You had fifteen thousand dollars' worth on board. Opsyke told me so! He told me you were smuggling. He knew I wouldn't tell. Oh, please, Randy. Please, please. You never made me wait so long before."

For a minute I thought Randolph was going to hit Gay too, and then I would have interfered. But he thought better of it. With an almost superhuman effort at self-control he collected himself and tried to pull these smoking chestnuts out of the fire.

"Poor Gay," he said soothingly. "Poor dear. If I had any morphine I would give it to you, really I would. I would not let you suffer." He turned to the rest of us. "She is imagining things."

Acute disbelief was registered on every face in the room, and the doctor was smart enough to see it.

"To tell you the truth," he said, "I do usually carry a small store of sedatives and anodynes, dealing as I do with highly nervous patients. But the events of the last few days have quite exhausted my supply."

Nobody was buying this one, but again Gay made it unnecessary for us to say so. She had gone entirely out of control. Only one thing obsessed her.

"I know what you are trying to do, Randy," she wailed. "and I will. I'll do it now. Nothing matters anyway, now that Larry's gone. Yes, I shot Opsyke. I don't care if I did. He was awful. When Larry and I were first lovers, it was in his house on Majorca, and he thought it was fine, because he hated Carlotta. Then he was going to help Larry get a divorce, but later, he—he wanted me to leave Larry for him, and when I wouldn't he said he would ruin us both. He would tell Larry I took dope—I guess Randy must have told him—and he would tell Carlotta... and... and stop Larry's money. That night before dinner, he told me to meet him on deck at eleven-thirty and give him my final answer. I was afraid to tell Larry, but I got his gun—and I didn't plan to do anything with it, really—but I thought maybe I could scare him. I begged him and begged him to let me alone. But he laughed. He laughed, and I ran back to the passageway, and turned around, and I guess the gun went off... And I was so scared I threw it at him, and ducked into the ladies' room, and didn't come out until I heard people around. But I didn't see him fall overboard. I didn't see him fall down at all. I didn't know he was dead until I came out again... Oh, it was awful! I couldn't tell anybody, and I went on and on, and then I did tell Larry a little bit about it, and I guess he thought he could save me, or else he just didn't want to live... And I don't either, now."

She was sobbing wildly now, and instinctively I took her in my arms. Perhaps she was the murderess, but I could not think of her as evil—only lost, tormented, infinitely pitiful. Lost in a maze of false values and easy answers, driven from catastrophe to catastrophe. She raised her ravaged face from my shoulder.

"That's everything I know. Now you can all go home. Now, Randy, can I have a shot?"

"I tell you," Randolph said, at this time he carried conviction, "I haven't any."

The Captain, who seemed impervious to human suffering, got up out of his chair with something suspiciously like a sigh of relief. "Well, I guess that does it. Hez, go up and tell the helmsman to make for port. I'll watch the prisoner myself till we get there. No need for the rest of you to stay."

He pulled out Robert's little gun from his hip pocket and laid it on the table beside the chair. "Oh no, Captain Jonas," Robert said quietly. "There is much too much left to explain."

"What do you mean?" "Are we to believe that Miss Walton got hold of enough morphine to poison Todd and Macbeth, and didn't save a little for her own needs? It isn't logical."

I felt like cheering for him. Gay was so beaten down, so much in need of help. "I suggest," said Robert, suavely, "that that morphine came out of the doctor's supply. I also suggest that you read us the letter in the safe."

With a queer flap of his hand which might have meant exasperation or resignation, the Captain turned without a word, and twiddled with the dials on the safe behind him. A panel in the corner. Randolph had gone ashen gray, but he made one more try for himself. "Just a minute. It is true that I had a large supply of morphine on board. It was not for illegal purposes, but to economize by buying at a cheaper rate. However, that is neither here nor there. The fact is, and I realize I should have mentioned it before, the drug is no longer in my possession. I was robbed of it two days ago. I suppose some of the crew..."

Brown snorted. Jonas did not look around. I was aware of a sort of quickening of attention in Robert, like a hunting dog pointing a covey of quail. The doctor looked around the silent room, and mopped his brow again.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, June 18 — The Supreme court's failure to pass upon the broad question of segregation in the nation's elementary school system at this session will make 1954 a needlessly turbulent and difficult year. It creates racial and political bitterness on the eve of Congressional elections at a moment when the world crisis demands American solidarity.

It will embarrass President Eisenhower, not only in his relationship with Capitol Hill, but also if he runs again in 1956. It will place every congressman seeking re-election, on the spot.

Their difficulties, however, are unimportant by comparison with the threat which the delay in a final ruling means to this country's world prestige. The dilatory handling of this problem diminishes our authority in improving the international situation.

In every area where the United States combats Russia in the cold war, Moscow's great ideological weapon is that this country discriminates against racial minorities, especially the colored people. In Asia, it is their principal sales talk. By their cautious approach to the question, the Supreme court members tend to confirm the Kremlin's thesis.

ARGUMENT DELAYED—The jurists ruled, a few weeks ago, against segregation in all public eating places in the District of Columbia. But it set next October for further argument on non-discrimination in elementary schools throughout the country.

It should be noted that previous rulings against segregation have dealt only with college and graduate institutions. This is the first case involving grammar grades.

The Vinson body said that it needed further information on the question, although it has been argued back and forth before them and lower courts for more than a year. Every possible argument, pro and con, has been uttered.

For these reasons, and in view of the need for a prompt settlement for domestic and foreign considerations, a final decision had been expected at this term, which is about to conclude.

STATEMENT WANTED—The

high tribunal also introduced what may be regarded as a political footnote into this historic and explosive controversy. It said that it would like to hear the views of Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. Thus, it asked for a judicial, rather than a campaign, statement on this issue from the Eisenhower Administration.

Now, Ike has been rather "cagey" on this sensitive problem, in view of his 1952 and current strength in the South. He believes that racial questions, especially FEPC, should be settled by the states rather than the federal government. He advocates non-segregation in the defense establishment and the District of Columbia, which is federal terrain.

But he has not declared himself on segregation versus non-segregation in all its various nationwide manifestations. He gives the impression that he would prefer to have the courts and the state legislatures solve the politico-social-economic dilemma.

No matter what stand Brownell takes, it is bound to harass the White House. If Ike's chief law officer argues for segregation, the GOP will lose support among racial elements in the great cities of the North and the Middle West, where Ike rolled up huge majorities last year.

But if the Attorney General files a brief or makes an argument in favor of racial mingling in elementary schools, Eisenhower's hope of Republicanizing the South or even holding Dixie's affection, will disappear. Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, an Eisenhower admirer, has said that he will withdraw state support of the public school system, if non-segregation becomes law.

The high court's request for a re-statement by the Eisenhower administration appears to be judicial redundancy. The government's anti-segregation position has been presented by the Truman administration, which used this issue to win votes, and the government is a continuing body.

From a strict legal viewpoint, lawyers see no reason why Eisenhower's Attorney General should be dragged in as a last-minute intervener.

Annual Inspection Held By Order Of Eastern Star

Honored Guests Are Introduced

Annual inspection of Circleville Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star was held Tuesday evening in Masonic Temple.

A dinner for 243 members and guests was held in the dining room of the Temple preceding the exercises. Tables were decorated with a red, white and green color scheme. Roses centered the arrangements.

Mrs. John A. Evans, worthy matron, and George Fishpaw, worthy patron, presided at the meeting. Honored guests present were:

Worthy grand matron of Ohio, Marguerite Steele, of Mt. Healthy; worthy grand patron of Ohio, Victor H. Blanke, of Sidney; past grand matrons of Ohio, Zella Watkins of Cleveland, Luella Dolby of Groveport, Fairy B. Gingers of Columbus and Marie L. Hamilton of Circleville; and grand representatives Eleanor Geist, Colorado, of Cleveland, Roberta Blanke, Michigan, of Sidney, and May Armstrong, New Jersey, of Kingston.

Grand chapter officers were: grand Ruth, Florence Moodie, of Cleveland; grand Electa, Elizabeth Schiebel, of Columbus; grand warden, Martha Newell, of Cincinnati; and deputy grand matrons, Lucy Rannlaw and Esther Deartus, of Groveport.

Worthy matrons and worthy patrons from fourteen neighboring towns and the state of Oregon were present.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cook were in charge of the decoration. Red roses and crystal candelabra centered the tables where refreshments were served at the end of the meeting.

Final meeting of the chapter until Fall will be held June 23.

Food News About Pineapple Fillers

To keep diced or sliced apples, fresh peaches and bananas, or avocados from darkening, drop them into canned pineapple juice or syrup drained from canned pineapple, or toss with the pineapple itself. The pieces will stay bright in color.

For a new and delicious flavor, try cooking prunes in pineapple juice. The prunes will turn out plump in this sweet sauce.

Dress up cabbage salad with some crushed pineapple and some chopped, roasted, unblanched almonds to make it extra special.

Coffee cakes take on added appeal with a sweet topping of brown sugar-coated pineapple slices or chunks. Crushed pineapple finds its way into bran muffins and nut bread for a new taste.

Weekly Food Review

By The Associated Press
The long-awaited break in pork prices finally came this week. In some instances prices slipped as much as 20 cents a pound after nudging the dollar-a-pound level earlier in the month. Most other basic meat and dairy products showed little overall change on a nation-wide basis, but retail prices of top-grade eggs were uniformly higher.

Consumer resistance which for a time threatened to assume the proportions of a buyers' strike was credited with knocking down the retail price of center cut pork chops from 95 cents a pound to 75 cents in many New York City supermarkets.

Elsewhere around the country, reductions ranging from 2 to 10 cents a pound were posted by one major food chain, with the biggest price cuts concentrated along the Atlantic Coast. Market analysts said the downturn resulted from a build-up of pork supplies at retail which could be traced to buyer resistance.

Poultry figured prominently in week-end promotions in many food centers around the nation. Beef continued a good buy in most parts of the country.

Egg prices advanced as much

Post Increase A 'Probability'
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland of California, the acting Republican leader, says a proposal to boost postal rates generally is "a probability" for action this session.

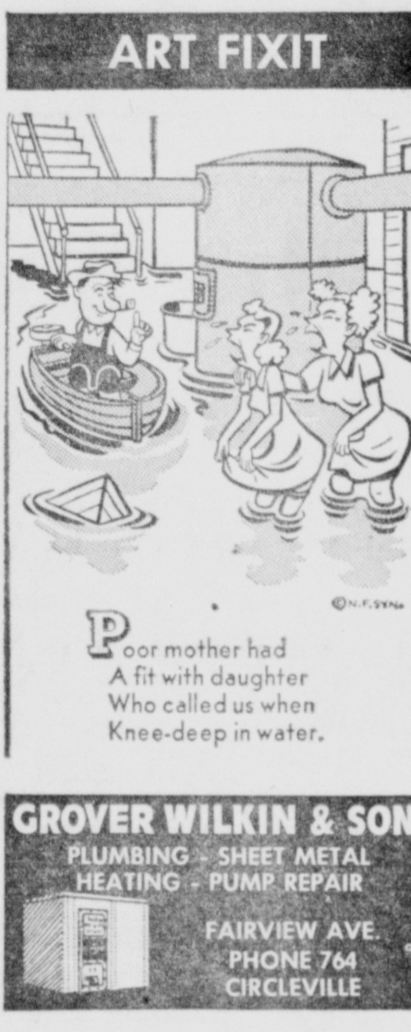

Postmaster General Summerfield working out final details of the administration bill, refused to divulge its contents.

It has been reported the plan would raise the price on out-of-town letters from 3 to 4 cents an ounce, on domestic air mail from 6 to 7 cents, and authorize substantial increases in postage for most newspapers, magazines and packages.

Opposition is anticipated on both sides of the Capitol.

How To Block Depression Is Study Topic

More Advertising, Research, Greater Production Offered

NEW YORK (AP)—How to ward off a business slump — or lick one if it develops when defense spending cases — is being studied today by many businessmen.

Some are sure they've found good answers — increased advertising, greater output and selling effort, research, new products. Here's a sampling:

Invest heavily in telling the world about your product through advertising," counsels Lee Hastings Bristol, president of Bristol Myers Co. He says that gives a company competitive advantage over any rival who tries to retrench. Bristol says his own company did just that during the depressed thirties.

He also plugs hard for "putting educational content into advertising as a public service" — his own firm stresses its dental health claims for an ammoniated chlorophyll toothpaste.

Such advertising by the industry has increased the use of dentifrices 5 per cent since 1945, Bristol says, with population growth playing only a minor part.

An increase in advertising expenditures, with or without a Korean truce, is urged by W. W. Wachtel, president of Calvert Distillers Corp. — a sentiment that should please the members of the Advertising Federation of America.

Qualified 3 per cent of national income. Ad spending is now about seven billion dollars a year, but 3 per cent of present national income would be 9½ billion dollars.

A good word for advertising in America also is being spoken in France, according to Richard L. Blum Jr., president of Julius Wile Sons, importers of wines and liquors.

Just back from a visit to France, Blum says the success of the cognac people in uniting for a promotion campaign in this country is inspiring other groups in France to unite for advertising campaigns here to try to boost sales of French wines, champagnes and liqueurs.

The supply for export to America will be ample this year, Blum says, and prices should show little change.

More production is the Ford scheme. The motor firm aims at 20 per cent greater output — and therefore 20 per cent greater sell-

Defendant Found Sitting In Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An alert policeman has averted the possibility of Garrison Harris being called as a prospective juror in his own grand theft case.

Patrolman P. B. Le Page noticed something familiar about one of the jurors yesterday when he visited a courtroom. It was Harris, who later admitted he is awaiting trial next Wednesday on the theft charge.

He was promptly ejected from the jury panel. The case on which he was sitting is continuing with 11 jurors.

Air Conditioning on wheels* comes of age!

NOW you can have a car that's as comfortable on hot days as your air-conditioned home, office or favorite theater.

Now you can ride in draft-free coolness at the temperature level you choose—even when the outside reading is 110° and more.

Now you can take a full complement of passengers through the thick of traffic on a sweltering day—and each one of you will keep looking and feeling fresh as a daisy at dewtime.

But note this: what Buick put into its AIRCONDITIONER goes far beyond the usual.

For the advanced design of this Buick unit provides dual roof ducts that distribute up to 300 cubic feet of cooled, freshened, filtered, air per minute to all parts of the car interior evenly and constantly—without icy blasts and drafts on your neck, shoulders, legs.

Grilles in Buick's exclusive dual roof ducts insure draft-free distribution of conditioned air—and also provide individual control of air direction as desired.

What's more, these exclusive roof ducts have individually controlled air directors above the side windows. So each window-seat passenger can guide a gentle breeze of conditioned air exactly where he wants it.

Of course, the Buick AIRCONDITIONER is automatic.

You switch it on, choose the temperature setting you want—and that level of coolness is maintained constantly. It thoroughly conditions the air around you—automatically. It carries off heat, stale air, tobacco smoke—automatically. It continuously introduces outside air into the system—automatically.

Return air grilles on package shelf help maintain continuous circulation of conditioned, pollen-free air.

It's fast-acting, too. Even after an hour or more locked up under summer's hottest sun, the car interior can be brought to a delightfully cool comfort in a matter of minutes.

And it's really compact. The cooling unit itself fits neatly on a narrow shelf in the big trunk compartment—leaves plenty of room for luggage and the like.

Why not drop in on us and try a demonstration?

You'll find that the amazing Buick AIRCONDITIONER with its exclusive dual roof ducts is the ultimate comfort in hot-climate driving.

*Buick Airconditioner available in 1953 Roadmaster and Super Riviera and Sedan models at extra cost.

Father---Tall Tower As The Son Grows Up

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Father's Day is on the horizon, and already fathers are feeling sheepish about it.

They are not sure whether they like a day in their honor. Or at least they pretend to feel this way.

"It just means I will be sand-bagged by all those odd presents I escaped last Christmas — the strange gifts women think men yearn for," said one father. "and, naturally, I'll then have to take the whole tribe out to dinner, pick up the check—and pay later the bills for the gimmicks mama and the kids gave me."

Father is not used to being a hero in this civilization, even for a day. It is a bit different with Mother's Day. Motherhood is a symbol of lonely heroism in any age, and a true symbol. But for some reason nobody, so far as I know, has ever built a statue to "The pioneer father."

There should be such a statue. If I designed it, it would be a tired, patient old bull, the wrinkles of muscled duty showing in his flybitten shoulders, as he bent his horns down to protect his mate and brook against the wolf of life and time.

I have never been a father. But my old man was, and a good one, too. I appreciated him before his death, more than 15 years ago, but I never really told him so, although I think he knew. Men often feel a kinship between each other that neither puts into words. Men are shyer than women.

Even so, I have always regretted I didn't say more to my dad. It cannot hurt to tell your heart. And I write this only for sons whose fathers are still alive, to whom they can still say "thank you"—along with sending them that necktie.

My dad was a coal miner's son and came up rough and strong. He married young, sired four sons quickly, and—a later sweet surprise—a daughter, my sister, Dolores.

She was the blessing of his later days, and he wore his heart to silence by hard work at 48. Boys are a lot of trouble to a father.

But a daughter is a comfort. A boy begins to be a man at 5, and to pull within himself and be stubborn, and make his father feel his years. But a daughter restores her dad forever, protecting with her love the yearning for youth he needs.

All his sons gave dad more than his share of woes, although none of us ever robbed a bank or went to reform school. And he was always a strong wall of understanding. He was one of the parents who knew how hard it is for a human being to grow up. His sympathy was a bright shield when we really needed it, although he coddled none of us.

He was a tall tower in the desperate hour, the hour that a boy growing up feels to him, at least, is desperate.

My sister made him happy, his four boys gave him problems. In my case he couldn't understand why I insisted on going to college instead of staying in his grocery store and learning business. But as mother backed me, he backed us both. I earned most of my way, but there were a couple of years when dad didn't get a new suit.

There are so many things a man can remember when he recalls a dead dad. About the time I got in a car wreck, and he came and drove me back to college, feeling out of place in a fraternity house in his rough suit, and made no complaint at all. As

I hadn't been at the wheel, he thought my broken jaw and dislocated hip would give me enough to think about. They did—for the rest of my life.

When I was a child he would give me a dime and say, "Now don't spend all that on one girl, son." I give my little goddaughters a quarter today and say, "Now don't spend all of it on one boy, girls." And they laugh at the idea that any girl would ever spend a whole quarter on a boy. So family jests go down through generations.

There must be millions of Americans who on this Father's day will recall warmly the dad that isn't there to praise. This is the flower of remembrance I would plant upon my own one's grave:

"Life may not have given you what you wanted. But you are not forgotten, after these years, by those you created—and stood by. If I were a dad I could only ask I might be as fine a one as you were. One of your sons, speaking for all of your children."

Ex-President Shows Relaxed Look of Man Without Worries

(Editor's Note: Ernest B. Vaccaro covered Harry S. Truman as an Associated Press Washington correspondent when Truman was a senator from Missouri, then was assigned to the White House to cover him as President for nearly eight years. Passing through Kansas City recently, Vaccaro looked up his old friend.)

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON (AP)—It was late of a hot Missouri Sunday afternoon.

The gray-haired man with a tan to match his smartly creased summer suit grinned through the crowd gathered in front of the Alladin Hotel.

He had driven in from Independence, he explained to this reporter, to welcome two automobile caravans from Texas and Oklahoma on their Kansas City stop en route to the National Junior Chamber of Commerce convention in Minneapolis.

Harry S. Truman, former President of the United States, betrayed no impatience whatsoever that one delegation was late.

"The only thing is that I promised Mrs. Truman I'd hurry home and move some furniture out of our bedroom so it can be painted tomorrow," he confided. "I don't want to be too late."

He looked years younger than when he left the White House. He looked more adjusted to private life than during his first few weeks back in Missouri. A long rest in Hawaii had accustomed him to moving at a slower pace.

Signing of a contract for the memoirs he intends to write and making plans for the future have provided the work he needs.

He is, he said, a happy man—

'Log Skipper Beached, Jailed

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The captain of a log doesn't have the rights accorded the captain of a freighter, Edward Gutman has discovered.

The captain of the freighter told the Coast Guard he had to bring his big ship to a halt in mid-channel between San Pedro and Terminal Island last night.

He said a log ridden by Gutman was blocking his way, and Gutman yelled, "I'm the captain of this log and I'm not going to get out of your way."

The Coast Guard sent a cutter, Gutman, 32, a transient, was arrested on a drunk count. His log was beached.

Farmers Asked To Store Own Wheat Crops

Ohio wheat raisers are being urged to provide a maximum of on-the-farm storage for this year's record crop.

The recommendation—from the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative—came on the heels of an announcement by the U. S. Department of Agriculture placing the expected U. S. wheat crop at 1.132 billion bushels, nearly 40 million bushels above that forecast only a month ago.

According to W. Norton Woods of Maumee, "Even without the increase in crop predicted, we face a very acute storage problem. Ohio's crop is expected to reach 61 million bushels, compared to 55 million last year."

"At present, the cash price to the farmer for July delivery is between $1.70 and $1.75 per bushel. With the limited amount of storage available, prices are expected to dip even further at harvest time. And there simply is not enough commercial storage available."

WOODS ALSO announced the Bureau is working with the Ohio quality wheat committee and the Ohio Production and Marketing Administration (PMA) in preparing a list of bin requirements and steps to be taken to preserve the quality of farm-stored wheat, so farmers can participate under the government loan program.

He said: "If the majority of Ohio farmers are to participate in the loan program, farm storage is our only answer. Wheat can be stored satisfactorily on the farm if certain precautions are followed."

The farm loan rate in Ohio ranges from $2.25 to $2.31 per bushel, depending upon the county. Although PMA directs the loan program and periodically inspects the wheat under loan, it is still the farmers' responsibility to maintain both the quality and quantity.

Farmers can get copies of "Requirements for Safe Storage of Wheat on the Farm" at local elevators within a few days.

June 26 and to New York for another speech on the 29th.

The conversation was interrupted by a telephone call. Would Truman like to visit in the manager's suite? He would, and he did.

The manager introduced his wife and small daughter. The child charmed the distinguished visitor immediately, chattering, dancing and showing her heavily laced fancy pants.

Watching the little girl, Truman was reminded of his daughter, Margy, as he calls Margaret, when she was that little.

He beamed when he was told everyone enjoyed her appearances on television shows.

"I don't get to see her on television here," he said rather unhappily. "They tell me she's getting better all the time. And nobody can say that she has her contract because her daddy's in the White House."

Finally the telephone rang; the delegates were on hand. Truman left.

They made little speeches in front of the hotel, and Truman told the delegates he hoped they had a successful convention.

He was made chief of the Oklahoma Junior Chamber of Commerce tribe and received a beautiful Indian war bonnet. Some of the visitors displayed some fancy Indian war dancing and whoops echoed for blocks in the otherwise quiet Sabbath.

The ex-President wouldn't put on the war bonnet, despite the plea of the photographers, but held it in his arms, the tail end trailing down to the sidewalk.

As he turned to go, Truman gathered the bonnet carefully into his arms and started down the street with the reporter to a garage, where he planked down his money with his parking ticket.

A big, shiny new car with all the modern gadgets was rolled out. Harry Truman climbed behind the wheel after putting the bonnet in the back seat, waved a "See you at lunch tomorrow" and rolled out into the traffic bound for Independence, 12 miles away, to move the furniture for Mrs. Truman.

PITTSBURGH
SUN-PROOF House Paint

Sun-Proof Two-Coat House Painting System equals the performance of three coats of old type paint, while saving you the extra material and labor cost of a third coat. Sun-Proof is extra durable because it is made with "Vitolized Oil" which stays in the paint film keeping it live, tough, and elastic.

Assistant Job Chief Awarded Highly Coveted Honor

Size of the plant to be operated by the Du Pont Co. south of Circleville was given new emphasis Wednesday by the announcement the $10 million operation at this time is only about 10 per cent finished.

Construction is running several days ahead of schedule and completion is slated for late next year.

Disclosure that the job still has about 90 per cent to go before it is turned over to operating personnel was made by F. C. Baylis, assistant field project manager and principal speaker at a mass safety rally.

It especially impressed visiting observers, since a portion of the steel silhouette already in place traces the outline of a large production unit. The Circleville plant will be the first unit for commercial production of Du Pont "Mylar," a newly-developed plastic-like film tagged in advance for many industrial uses.

HELD AT THE project site about two miles south of here, the safety gathering was attended by supervisory officials, guests and approximately 400 construction workers and office employees. Guests were conducted on a tour of the project following the meeting.

Opening comments and introduction of guests was by E. S. Clark Jr., engineer in charge of the project's elaborate safety program.

Following the address by Baylis, Field Project Manager James E. McCook spoke on the need for more personal participation in the spirit behind all safety precautions.

A special teletype message of congratulation was received from T. L. Pierce, district superintendent for Du Pont. Pierce praised the safety record already achieved at the Circleville project and offered encouragement for an even more impressive achievement in the safety field.

Guests included the following: W. O. Simon, director of production in Du Pont's film department; Emory F. Ridlon, plant manager designate for the unit being built here; W. T. Blake, Ohio state industrial commissioner; J. H. Fluker, superintendent, division of safety and hygiene, Ohio state industrial commission;

M. E. Noggle, president of the Third National Bank, Circleville; E. G. Grigg, vice-president, Circleville Chamber of Commerce; A. V. Couch, manager, Ralston Purina plant, Circleville; C. T. Gilmore, local manager for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.; Ross Boggs, president of the Columbus Building Trades Council; and Ed Waller, business agent for the council's carpenter group.

EARLIER IN the day, local officials announced appointment of B. B. Deffenbaugh to serve as service superintendent under Ridlon. Deffenbaugh joined other company officials here for the rally.

Highlight of the afternoon program was presentation of the "safety testimonial award," high honor of the firm's engineering department, by McCook to Baylis.

Opening the speaking portion of the program, Clark called attention to the enviable safety record that has become an incentive for all Du Pont operations. He pointed out Du Pont has only about one lost-time injury case for every 100 reported in outside industry.

Clark said the Du Pont construction organization led by McCook here is determined to complete the Circleville project without a lost-time injury report.

"We mean business when we say no injuries during the Circleville construction," the safety engineer said.

Introduced by Clark, Baylis expanded on this aim and reviewed the many steps taken to have all employees on the project fully coordinated with the key safety theme—a "must" guide in all Du

Pont construction and operation efforts.

Baylis detailed the closely supervised safety setup that went into effect at the local project from the beginning. Adding special impetus to the safety program here is a company-wide safety drive under way during June.

BAYLIS ALSO stressed the high Du Pont safety record in comparison with general industry and revealed the firm at this time holds five world's records in safety.

Construction work at the Circleville plant site already has covered 150,000 man hours without a lost-time injury case, he said.

"Your record here to date is one that you can be proud of," he told the project workers.

Approximately 200 more construction employees will be hired on the project before the anticipated peak of 600 is reached for the plant-building phase.

Baylis emphasized an alert attitude on the part of the individual worker is the base upon which safety records are built. He said the cause of on-the-job safety is dictated by "common sense" and added:

"There isn't a single thing to be gained by taking a chance."

Baylis said in his talk that inspection teams are constantly watching the project here for safety rule violations.

MCCOOK, A VETERAN of 25 years in the construction industry and widely known here as top man in the local Du Pont construction job, was introduced by his chief aide.

Leading into an illustration on the benefits of a safety program, McCook told his audience:

"I have often been asked if I have actually seen a man die because of an accident on the job. I have not only seen one, I've seen several men die through such accidents, and I can tell you it gives a person a weird and strange feeling."

"I hope none of you ever has to experience it, because it's a feeling of utter helplessness."

"It's a sight that will nauseate you—it will make you sick. And it will make you realize that, with all of our modern science and medical accomplishments, none of it is of any avail when a man is dying. There just isn't a single thing you can do to bring him back!"

McCook referred to several instances during his career in which he watched men die after being injured while working. In all of them, he warned, gross negligence, carelessness and lack of pre-planning directly led to the men losing their lives.

"I implore you as fellow workers on this project to resolve now that you'll go back to your jobs with that thought foremost in your mind—the thought that tells you, 'I will not let my buddy get hurt.'"

The safety rally, held outside the project's administration building, was the first of its kind held on the local Du Pont job.
